YOUNG WOMAN WARNED AGAINST NORTHEY'S ATTENTIONS

THREAT AGAINST GIRL IN LETTER

POINTS TO JEALOUSY IN STRANGE DEATH MYSTERY

Photographed Expressly for the Boston American.

DINING ROOM IN WHICH NORTHEY WAS SHOT—ARROW SHOWS CHAIR IN WHICH HE SAT AT TIME

Victim of Latest Maine Tragedy Had Been Attentive to Young Woman and Writer Declared Harm Would Come to Her If She Continued to Receive His Visits.

Special to the Boston American.

SOUTH WINDSOR, Me., Oct. 16.—To-day's developments in the shooting of Charles D. Northey, Jr., who was killed with a pistol owned by Mrs. Edwin J. Cooper while he was calling on her by appointment at her home last Tuesday afternoon and which resulted in the arrest of Mrs. Cooper on the charge of murder, have aroused the residents of every surrounding town.

R. V. Cary of Cooper's Mills, father of Miss Marian Cary, to whom young Northey had been attentive for a year and a half, said that his daughter had received two anonymous letters in a woman's handwriting, threatening her.

They were written by a jealous woman. The woman desired that Miss Cary should refuse to encourage Charles Northey's attentions. Harm would come to her if she permitted him to continue his calls at her home, the letters said.

Mr. Cary has informed the authorities of the receipt of these letters. He has told them that he believes he knows who wrote the letters.

SEARCH FOR THE WOMAN.

What woman was jealous of Charles Northey because of his attentions to Marian Cary is forming the basis of the searching inquiry now being conducted by the officials. Sensations are expected before they have completed their investigations.

To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter Mr. Cary admitted that his daughter had received the letters.

"The first came soon after Charles Northey commenced calling on my daughter," said Mr. Cary. "That was about a year and a half ago. She was much frightened. I told her not to pay any attention to it, and she burned the letter as I had told her. Not wishing to alarm Northey, I told her not to say anything about it to him when he called, and I believe that she followed my instructions.

"A few weeks later the second message came. It was in the same handwriting and on a postal card. As nearly as I can remember the postal said:

'You need not think that you amount to anything. Your sweetheart is going to Boston with me. He does not care anything about you.'

"Again she was frightened, but I consoled her and told her not to worry. This postal was burned like the letter. So far as I know there were no others received.

RECOGNIZED WRITING.

"I believe that I recognized the handwriting. The name of the woman I cannot tell you, but I have communicated the facts to the proper officials.

"Three weeks ago I told my daughter that Charles Northey must stop his visits to Mrs. Cooper, or else stop coming to my house. I did not want her to be the talk of the town or to have her name mentioned in gossip concerning a young man and a married woman.

"Charles had been in the habit of coming to the house every Sunday. It was a year ago that he first started coming so often. He was an estimable young man and I liked him. I had no objections to his paying attention to Marian, but I would not have her talked about. That was why I warned her as I did."

MEANT VISIT TO BE LAST.

"My daughter did so. I told her to do. I believe that when Northey went to the Cooper house on Tuesday he meant that it should be his last visit there."

As nearly as the Cary family can remember the first anonymous letter read something like this:

Marion Cary:

You think you are going to marry Charles Northey. You are not going to marry him. You never will be because you will not be allowed to marry Charles Northey. You must give him up. It will be better for you if he does not see you again. Do not let him call upon you any more. If you allow him to call on you and encourage his attentions, something will happen. If you do not want harm to come to you give him up now and save trouble. He can never be yours.

A FRIEND.

Miss Cary has been kept from the public as far as possible since the tragedy, but there is no effort on the part of her father to keep back any facts from the authorities. She has been sent away to the home of friends, but the officers are able to see her when they wish. She is greatly affected by the sudden death of young Northey.

The threatening letter and postal card episode have been known to the police for several days, but have been kept secret by them until they were learned to-day by a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

The meeting in the church on Sunday night before the tragedy was more sensational than was at first reported. Miss Cary was in a pew near the rear of the little church when Charles Northey entered. He saw her and purposely sat nearby in order that he might join her promptly after the services.

SAT WITH YOUNG NORTHEY.

Then Mrs. Cooper entered. She first saw Miss Cary. She did not smile or recognize her in any way. After staring at her for a moment her eyes rested on young Northey sitting near. She did not appear pleased at all when she saw him, but went directly to his side and sat there. Without paying any attention to the service she began whispering to him with an intensity of feeling that at once made it self manifest to practically everyone in the church.

What was said is not known to anyone but Mrs. Cooper. Young Northey seemed greatly embarrassed and shook his head several times. He tried to slide away from her, but she moved along and kept close to him. Immediately after the service he evaded her and joined Miss Cary, who had been a witness to his em[illegible]rassment. It is believed that he had [illegible] or written to her the [illegible] said that

INFERNAL MACHINE TO JOHN D.?

Package Believed to Contain Explosives Addressed to the Oil King.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 16.—Express Agent Berry of the United States Express at Vinton, Ia., has a package addressed to John D. Rockefeller which he believes contains either explosives or an infernal machine. The package was brought to the office last Saturday night while Berry was in a packing room arranging his packages for a train. The man who left the package left also a $1 bill.

The package is addressed to John D. Rockefeller, Cleveland, O. Agent Berry wired for authority to open the package before sending it. The officials have wired back that a special detective is on the way from Chicago, and to guard the package carefully until the officer arrives. Great secrecy is being maintained by the express officials.

HYDE TO GIVE "YELLOW DOG" TESTIMONY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—James Hazen Hyde is going to face the music.

He has decided to appear before Inquisitor Hughes, chief counsel for the Armstrong Investigating Committee, on the life insurance scandals. Hyde's counsel, Samuel Untermyer, announced this day that Mr. Hyde would be here in a day or two, prepared to accept a subpoena from the committee. He is expected in this city not later than Wednesday.

When the investigation became assured prospect, Mr. Hyde left New York and shut himself to Newport. While the investigation committee and Mr. Hughes was getting officials of the Equitable Life Assurance Company on the rack Mr. Hyde was enlivening the Newport outside with his presence, introducing the latest "Hyde Bow," and adding an incalculable amount to the pleasure of the society set. Strong things were said in New York about his absence. Mr. Hyde continued in Newport, varying his sojourn there by an occasional trip to New York, and he accompanied by Harry Lehr.

Now the news that he will appear before the investigation committee is rejoicing the hearts of the officials, and Mr. Hughes, who are anxious to question him. One of the paramount matters about which they desire to interrogate Mr. Hyde is that of the famous "yellow dog" fund of $385,000.

When the investigating committee meet to-morrow Richard A. McCurdy, president of the Mutual Life, will be recalled to the stand and the expectation is that he will be kept on the rack most of the day.

The committee are not after A. C. Fields of the Mutual, but have been unable to locate him. Fields acts in the same capacity for the Mutual as "Judge" Andrew Hamilton does for the New York Life.

This will be an important week for the committee as it is the present intention to have both Thomas F. Ryan and James Hazen Hyde on the stand. Mr. Ryan will be asked about the Equitable-Ryan deed of trust.

WOMAN SAVES CHILDREN FROM DEATH IN FLAMES

MRS. STEFFE OF SOUTH BOSTON RISKS LIFE TO RESCUE NEIGHBOR'S FOUR LITTLE ONES.

Mrs. Margaret F. Steffe rescued the four young children of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Tierney from death by fire or suffocation in their home on the first floor of the wooden dwelling house at No. 118 Eighth street, South Boston, at 8 o'clock to-day.

During the absence of their parents, the children were playing with matches. They set fire to curtains in a room and were unable to put out the fire themselves. The children are Hugh, eight years old; John, six; Thomas, four, and Catherine, two.

Their screams were heard by Mrs. Neil[illegible] Gunn, who has an apartment on the floor above the Tierney home. She is an elderly woman and did not try to investigate the cause of the alarm.

She called to Mrs. Steffe, who lives on the upper floor. When Mrs. Steffe opened the door leading from her apartments into the hallway, she saw smoke curling up the stairway. She rushed downstairs and into the Tierney home, although she risked her life. She could scarcely see the children through the dense smoke, but she groped about the floor until she found them, and then took them into the home of a neighbor.

"I think that the children would have perished if I had not reached them," said Mrs. Steffe to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "They could not put the fire out nor get out of the room."

PRINCIPAL FIGURES IN WINDSOR TRAGEDY

Mrs. Edwin J. Cooper, thirty-five years old, mother of three children, wife of a prosperous business man, Methodist church member, charged with murder.

Edwin J. Cooper, husband of accused woman, blacksmith, leader in town affairs, taught the dead man his trade.

Miss Edith Ware, overheard conversation between Mrs. Cooper and Charles D. Northey, Jr., at Sunday night prayer meeting, where appointment was made for Tuesday afternoon at the Cooper home, where Northey was shot and killed.

Miss Marion Cary, friend of Northey's, who may have been the innocent cause of his death.

Charles D. Northey, Sr., of Whitefield, father of the dead man, who says: "My son was murdered."

Charles D. Northey, Jr., aged twenty-two years, shot and killed at the home of Edith J. Cooper, where he had gone by appointment with Mrs. Cooper.

YANKEE COUPLE ELUDE MOORS

TANGIER, Oct. 16.—John Larkins, a New York lawyer, and his wife, disguised as Moors, have arrived here after a hazardous trip overland from Tetuan. They are the first foreigners to make the trip since the beginning of the revolt last year.

They report having encountered bands of armed men, who did not, however, penetrate their disguise, and who offered no interference with their journey through the Anghera country. The plucky Americans made the trip in the face of warnings by the Moorish authorities that they were risking their lives in doing so.

TAGGART CASE IN ARMY COURT?

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Colonel Dugan, commanding officer of the Department of the Lakes, U. S. A., has called a courtmartial to convene immediately at Fort Sheridan "to investigate such charges against soldiers as may properly be brought before it."

No positive information is obtainable from army officers as to cases that may come before the court, but it is said that the Taggart divorce case may be taken up, and possibly Lieutenant Fortescue, who was involved in the case, put on trial.

MILKMAN SHOT BY TWO THUGS

The police of Milton and Dorchester are searching for two footpads who shot Milkman Jerry Card through the right arm while attempting to hold him up on Randolph avenue in Lower Dorchester. Card had the bullet extracted in City Hospital, where he is still held for treatment to prevent blood poisoning.

Card lives on Hillside street, Milton. He says that he started out with his milk cart at 3 in the morning, and while driving through the wooded part of Randolph ave nue was stopped by these two men. One went for the back of the cart, and, when Card started after him, the other shot Card through the arm. These both highwaymen, according to Card's story, ran away, apparently frightened at the noise of the shooting.

FITZGERALD TO TAKE STUMP

John F. Fitzgerald, one of the candidates for nomination as Mayor this Fall on the Democratic ticket, will make the first speech of the campaign for the State ticket on Thursday or Friday evening of this week, the exact date and place not having been decided as yet by the Democratic State Committee.

These speeches will be made in support of the Democratic State ticket, and the mayoralty question will not be touched upon.

"I think," said Mr. Fitzgerald to-day, "that we should all take off our coats and pitch in for the good of the State ticket. That is the fight that confronts Democrats at the present time. After that we can give our attention to the city ticket."

WHO KILLED Mattie Hackett Chas. Northey, Jr. James Dunn ? 3 MAINE MYSTERIES

go to the house Tuesday to discuss the subscription which he had determined.

Mrs. Cooper was seen in the Augusta jail by a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, case is gaining downcast at the predicament in which she has found herself, but maintains that she will prove her innocence when the hearing comes a week from to-day. She refuses to discuss the case since warned by her counsel. Her husband called on her yesterday and several friends sent flowers to her. Mr. Cooper has aged ten years in appearance since his wife's incarceration, but sticks to her faithfully.

COUNTRY AROUSED.

The recent tragedies in this county have aroused the people as nothing else has done since the civil War. The strangling of Miss Mattie Hackett has never been solved. The citizens of Rumford still go armed because of the mystery surrounding that killing.

Then the death of James B. Dunn of Bethel, the sole son of his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Smith, at Fayette, is not satisfactorily accounted for in the minds of many people, since Dunn's brother deemed his belief that he had been murdered. It was announced that Dunn had committed suicide after attempting to kill Mrs. Smith. No reason for the act was set forth and when R. J. Dunn, his brother, arrived he told the authorities that they must further investigate the case. He himself conducted a thorough investigation and said that his belief in the murder theory was stronger than ever.

PINKERTON CHIEF NOW AT WORK ON HACKETT MURDER

BRADFIELD, Me., Oct. 16.—That an arrest in the Mattie Hackett murder case is close at hand seems probable from the appearance here of Superintendent George E. Leith of the Boston branch of the Pinkerton force. He was a long time in conference with Detective Martin, Sheriff Hanson and County Attorney Leigh. The decision reached was not made public.

Mrs. Elsie Hobbs Raymond is still with her parents in Turner, but her husband is here and out of employment.

Mrs. E. Burrows, whose husband disappeared September 25, the day following Detective Martin's arrival here, and which attracted some attention in connection with the Hackett case, says:

"It is a shame to connect my husband's name with the Hackett murder. We came here two years ago and settled on a farm that his health might improve. He is now a well man and has a good position in Boston. There was nothing mysterious about his going away. He simply had a position offered him and took it."

MAN HELD WHILE POLICE PROBE SHOOTING AFFAIR

LEWISTON, Me., Oct. 16.—While gunning George Glodenis shot Charles Black, in the sleeve of the shot entering his left body. He was taken to a hospital and will recover. If blood poisoning does not set in. Glodenis ran a mile attempting to jump a ditch when his gun, which was cocked, went off.

The men are both young and belong to the Polish colony here. They had a quarrel, but neither will admit it had anything to do with the shooting of to-day.

The police are not entirely satisfied that the shooting was altogether an accident and are investigating.

ANOTHER LINER CAUGHT IN GALE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—For four days the thousand passengers of the Anchor liner Caledonia, which arrived from Glasgow, were buffeted and tossed by tremendous storms and a gale that at its height reached the velocity of a hurricane. During this time the men, women and children of the ship say they were kept below.

Seas broke repeatedly over the Caledonia's decks, surging from one end to the length of the vessel and smashing against the iron gates and doors which kept the passengers staggered about as the ship rolled and tossed.

The ship was the same as that which the Cunarder encountered with such disastrous results.

Terrific rolling of the ship made movement on the part of the passengers impossible. It was impossible for any, except strong men, to ascend the companionways.

In the steerage, the closing of the compartments resulted in a second shortage for the 432 passengers. For two nights sleep was impossible because of the din made by the waves as they buffeted the ship.

FRANCE ENTERTAINS PRINCE FERDINAND

PARIS, Oct. 16.—Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria arrived in Paris to-day on an official visit to France, and is being entertained at the foreign office. During his visit to France important conferences in regard to Balkan questions are looked for. The Prince is a grandson of France's deposed King Louis Philippe.

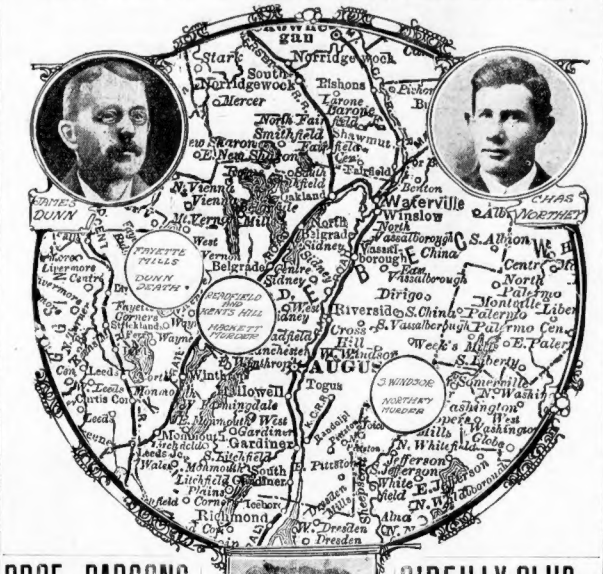
VICTIMS AND SCENES OF THREE MAINE DEATH MYSTERIES.



PROF. PARSONS LAUDS SWEDEN AND NORWAY

Set Example for World in Peaceable Settlement of the King Question.

PRAISES GIRL STRIKERS

Professor Frank Parsons praised Sweden and Norway for settling their governmental differences without going to war in his discussion of current topics at Brandwin-ners' College last evening. Then he talked of the struggle being made by the laundry girls who have struck in Troy, about the "King business" in Scandinavia, Professor Parsons said:

"Norway and Sweden have set the world a splendid example in the settlement of a very serious international difficulty without war.

"Those countries were in partnership in the King business. Norway got dissatisfied. She wanted to go out of the King business or else have a King of her own making all to herself. So instead of keeping on with a fraction of somebody else's King, as she discharged her half of the old King and gave notice that she wouldn't pay her part of his salary any longer nor take any notice of his commands. Sweden could have the whole of the old King and Norway would get a brand new monarch made to order on a pattern of her own choosing.

War Would Have Resulted.

"In less civilized times or in uncivilized countries the King would have ordered a Swedish army to march into Norway and there would have been a big war. But in this case all parties seem to have had sense enough to know that reason is better than force in such matters. Even the King did not want to fight, and so they argued the case and have now come to an understanding. It was a case especially to be manifested excellent judgment and force of character, giving notice that they would not go into the army and about their old low workers to settle any such King question. And now it is settled that Norway shall no longer knell at the throne but may stand erect and set up a Republic or build a new throne for herself as she likes.

"In Troy N. Y. a different sort of dispute has resulted in an industrial battle that has been raging for nearly six months.

"The laundry girls who starch these stiff collars in which a dozen in no time irritate our necks, found they could not make living pay on the reduced wages their employers paid. When they introduced a new machine they told the girls it would enable them to do so much more work that they could afford to take two cents a dozen instead of a cents, as formerly. The girls did their best with the new machines for nine months, but could not make the wages they used to get, and therefore asked for three cents a dozen in place of two. The wealthy owners of the factories refused. The girls offered to arbitrate. The owners said there was nothing to arbitrate. The party, nation, company or individual that refuses to arbitrate is the strong evidence of being in the wrong and of knowing it.

Sustained by the Public.

"The owners thought the girls could not resist, that they could not live without the work. But the girls struck and have held out without a single break or case of disloyalty from April 27 to the present time. The American Federation of Labor, the Mayor and business men of Troy, and liberal-minded people everywhere, sustain the girls in their fight, and contributions have been sent from all parts of the country. The New York evening papers has issued a special "strike" edition that sells for 10 cents, and the receipts go to the brave laundry girls who are fighting the cause of labor against unscrupulous industrial kings who do not seem to have much sense as the Scandinavian King who has shown himself not to be entirely impervious to reason.

"It will be a splendid thing for these girls to win and it is a splendid thing for a newspaper and men and women all over the country to do all that is possible to help them win.

Mr. Albertson gave a most interesting lesson on the factors of production.

Professor Winslow and Professor Drinko of the Institute of Technology and Dr. Fleischer have become members of the faculty.

MATTIE HACKETT.

Mattie Hackett, strangled to death at Kent's Hill; James Dunn shot, his brother alleges, at Fayette Mills, and Charles Northey, Jr., killed in the home of the Coopers at South Windsor, furnish three puzzles to the criminal authorities of the Pine Tree State.

WILL ASK THAT IRVING REST IN WESTMINSTER

King and Queen Send Messages of Sympathy, Roosevelt Adds Grief.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The terrific strain of playing strong dramatic parts, like that of Mathias in "The Bells," and similar famous roles, is believed now to have caused the sudden death of Sir Henry Irving, rather than simply old age. It was a case of overwork. The morning receptions which Sir Henry held, combined with the evening performances, also contributed toward his collapse.

The suggestion that his body be interred in Westminster Abbey is being universally approved and a strong national sentiment toward that end is developing. Nothing has been decided yet, however, about the funeral arrangements, pending a meeting of the theatrical managers which Sir Charles Wyndham has called for today. It is expected that at this meeting a formal request will be approved, asking the Dean of Westminster Abbey to permit interment in the Abbey.

The flood of tributes of admiration and affection is increasing. From King Edward and many men of all classes, including the great churchmen, are arriving public expression to their feelings on the sad occasion, nearly all dwelling as much on Henry Irving's personal character as on his histrionic talents.

King Edward and Queen Alexandra, through General Sir Dighton MacNaughton Probyn, keeper of the privy purse and extra equerry to the King, sent a message of sympathy to the family of Sir Henry Irving, in which their majesties say:

"He will indeed be a great loss to the profession of which he was such a distinguished member."

Messages of sympathy have been received from President Roosevelt and Director Jules Clarette on behalf of the Comedie Francaise.

General Booth of the Salvation Army, J. L. Poole, the actor, and Sir Theodore Martin were among the veterans who hastened to express that sense of loss which the world had sustained in the death of the distinguished man.

O'REILLY CLUB MOURNS ABSENT FRIEND, COLLINS

President Shuman Pays Beautiful Tribute to Late Mayor, a Former Member.

CONSOLED BY POET'S LINES

The John Boyle O'Reilly Club, which is composed of a few gentlemen who organized just after the death of O'Reilly in 1890, held its first meeting of the season yesterday.

Hon. A. Shuman is president of the club, and there were present Hon. Thomas J. Gargan, Mr. H. Staples Potter, Mr. T. B. Fitzpatrick, Mr. E. H. Clement of the Transcript and Mr. Joseph Smith, police commissioner of Lowell. Mr. James Jeffrey Roche, United States consul at Genoa, is also a member of the club.

The following beautiful tribute to the late Mayor Collins was read by Mr. Shuman:

"We are gathered here this beautiful Fall day to renew our old associations and once more take by the fraternal hand that has done so much in past years to bind us close and more together in good fellowship and brotherly love.

"To-day the hour is tinged with sadness, and as we look at the vacant chair of one who was always with us our eyes are dim as we recall our life-long friendship with General Collins, who has gone to join the great majority and like in memory hereafter with the patron saint of this club, John Boyle O'Reilly.

Lost Wise Counsellor.

"Great men are among the best gifts which God bestows upon a people, and in our communions with him we have much to be thankful for, in that it was ours to see him at his best in the midst of our weekly intercourse, and in our intercourse with him enjoy the consciousness that while he was great in mentality he never lost the warmth of his heart.

"Then, as results from the loss of Patrick A. Collins the John Boyle O'Reilly Club has been deprived of a wise counsellor, a true and faithful member and a true friend, one of the founders of this club.

Quote His Friend, O'Reilly.

"Let us resolve, also, that his memory will be ever sacred in our hearts, and that we inscribe upon our records this verse from O'Reilly's poem, 'Forever':

"'Those we love truly never die,
Though year by year the sad memorial wreath,
A ring and flowers, types of life and death,
Are laid upon their graves.'

"Resolved, That the John Boyle O'Reilly Club, in sending a copy of this record to Mrs. Collins and the family of their old friend who has passed away, extend also their deepest sympathy in those days of sorrow, bereft, with their assurances that each one will forever keep alive the spark of affection and transmit it each to each in an atmosphere of continued affiliation with them dear ones who are left behind."

TRIAL OF HEAD OF MAINE EPISCOPAL DIOCESE FOR LIBEL BEGINS TO-DAY

Greatest Church Sensation State Has Known in Years in Court.

Charges Made by Descendant of Founder of Dresden Parish Church.

ROCKLAND, Me., Oct. 16.—The trial of Bishop Robert Codman of the Episcopal Diocese of Maine and of the Rev. Robert Plant of Christ's Church, on the charge of criminal libel begins to-day.

This case has created the greatest church sensation that Maine has known in many years and the interest in the outcome is intense.

The indictment against Bishop Codman and the Rev. Mr. Plant was the result of the public reading of a letter in which Mr. Gardiner states he was classed as a heathen and a man who had been excommunicated from the church, "one to be ostracised, avoided and shunned," in the language of the indictment. Besides the criminal action Mr. Gardiner also instituted civil action for redress for the alleged libel.

Previous to the finding of the indictment last May Mr. Gardiner said that he would withdraw his complaint if the Bishop would apologize, but, as the Bishop showed no intention of doing so, the complaint was pressed and the indictment found.

The suit is the outcome of troubles which arose during the time that the Rev. Mr. Plant officiated as rector of the St. John's Episcopal Church at Dresden. The church was built and endowed by the great-great-great grandfather of Mr. Gardiner in 1742.

Beginning of the Trouble.

Mr. Gardiner went to Dresden a few years ago and was elected a member of the church society and later made warden of the parish. The church had been without a rector for a number of years and in 1903 the Rev. Robert W. Plant of Gardiner began to hold services at intervals by request of some of the parishioners. In the latter part of July of that year he was regularly elected rector. The following year, however, it was voted not to continue the arrangement. Shortly afterward the rector, it is alleged by Mr. Gardiner, attacked him verbally during the service.

"Then Mr. Plant made a trip to Mr. Dewart, where the bishop was summering," states Mr. Gardiner, "and obtained from him a statement in regard to myself, and this was read to a tea party, held in front of the church some time in September. There were some 200 people present at the time and the words in this statement of Bishop Codman read by Mr. Plant are what has caused all the trouble.

"I asked in writing for a copy of the letter of the Bishop read before that gathering, but was not able to obtain it, either from the bishop or from Mr. Plant. I have some sixteen letters written by the bishop on the subject and they will be used at the trial.

Charge in Indictment.

That part of the indictment which describes the charge against the bishop and the Rev. Mr. Plant is as follows:

"* * * The following false, scandalous and defamatory and libellous words were published and read to said (Rev.) Robert W. Plant, by request and direction of said Robert (Bishop) Codman, concerning the character and standing of him, said William H. Gardiner, as a member of St. John's parish, to wit:

"William H. Gardiner of Camden has been publicly excommunicated from the church by the bishop, and that he, the said William H. Gardiner, should be taken by the whole membership of said church as a heathen and one to be ostracised and avoided and shunned, to the great damage of him, said William H. Gardiner, in the county of Knox, State of Maine, as against the peace of the State of Maine and contrary to the form of the statute in such case made and provided.

"A true bill."

BARTLETT OFF ON STATE TOUR

General Charles W. Bartlett, Democratic candidate for Governor, will begin his campaign tour of the State to-night, starting in Lewiston.

He will meet the members of the city and ward committees of Lawrence at a hotel in that city. Dinner will be served. General Bartlett will informally lay his plans before the committeemen and make suggestions as to the conduct of the campaign. It is expected that the local persons will be present. Harvey Collison is the committee chairman.

FR. MATHEW SERVICE HELD.

Special anniversary exercises commemorating the life and work of the Rev. Theobald Mathew, the temperance apostle, were held yesterday at the Hibernian Total Abstinence Association. Mayor Daly of Cambridge delivered an address.

TAGGART BOY REFUSES TO GO

WOOSTER, O., Oct. 16.—In spite of the decree of Judge Eason, which places the Taggart boys in the possession of Captain Taggart, Culver Taggart, one of the sons, so far refuses to leave his mother. The mother is willing to prepare Culver to go to his father, but when it comes to actually driving the lad from her and forcing him to go to his father, that is something which she is not equal to doing. It looks as though Captain Taggart would have a hard task in getting the court's decree in respect to Culver carried out. E. S. Wertz, Taggart's attorney, says:

"If Mrs. Taggart chooses to co-operate with Captain Taggart at present in managing the children, she can eventually have them almost entirely with her.

"Meanwhile, Taggart is trying his utmost to persuade Culver to come to him without making a scene about it.

DISFIGURING ULCER

People Looked at Her in Amazement. Pronounced Incurable. Face Now Clear as Ever.

THANKS GOD FOR CUTICURA

Mrs. P. Hackett, of 400 Van Buren St., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I wish to give thanks for the marvelous cure of my mother by Cuticura. She had a severe ulcer, which physicians had pronounced incurable. It was a terrible disfigurement, and people would stand in amazement and look after her. After there was no hope from doctors she began using Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills, and now, thank God, she is completely cured, and her face is as smooth and clear as ever."

BRITAIN'S KING AND EMPEROR JOSEPH TO BE CALLED IN ROYAL DIVORCE SUIT

TO AIR SCANDAL OF PRINCE AND WIFE IN COURT

Charges Desertion and Irregularities Against Princess Louise.

HER 5 YEARS IN MADHOUSE

GOTHA, Germany, Oct. 16.—The trial of the suit of Prince Philip of Coburg for a divorce from the Princess Louise, daughter of King Leopold of Belgium, has begun here, and promises to be replete with sensations, as his petition Prince Philip alleges desertion on the part of Louise as well as numerous indiscretions and irregularities.

Princess Louise is also seeking a decree on the ground of cruelties practised upon her by her husband, including her five years' incarceration in a madhouse.

Dr. Visontai, a member of the Hungarian Parliament, attorney for Louise, said in an interview to-day:

"If my client has committed any indiscretions she was driven to such acts by the corrupt atmosphere of the Austrian court. I intend, in the trial, to reveal the ruthlessly immoral influences directed against her when she went to Vienna as a young wife. I intend to call the King of England, the Austrian Emperor, Ferdinand of Bulgaria and many other royalties and grand dukes as witnesses."

Princess Louise first came into prominence about eight years ago when her relations with Lieutenant Mittassich-Keglivich of the Austrian army caused her husband and relatives to place a close restraint upon her. She remained in seclusion until August, 1904, when she escaped from her attendants, through the assistance of Keglivich and her physician. She was examined as to her sanity and the physicians pronounced in her favor.

LOUISE DRIVEN TO DESPERATION BY CRUEL FATHER

Princess Louise was immured for five years in an asylum for the insane because of her friendship for Count Keglevich Mattasich, a dashing lieutenant of the Uhlans. The Uhlans are the famous German cavalry corps which wrought such havoc with the soldiery of France in the great Franco-German war.

She was but seventeen years old when she married the Prince of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, a general in the Austrian army. She was miserable in Vienna. She hated her husband's relatives and soon came to detest him. When she told her father, the dissolute and cruel King of the Belgians, that she wanted a divorce, he laughed in his cynical, bitter fashion and said:

"Madam, it must not be. Be happy. Remember that marriage is a screen behind which one does as one desires."

In court circles there is little wonder that a daughter should elope after receiving this heartless parental admonition.

It is said that despite appearances and slander, her relations with Count Mattasich were platonic. He took her away to the court of her father after she had been exiled from Vienna—palace. Her husband sought revenge. He had no trouble in getting her cruel father to incarcerate her in a sanitarium.

As for the unfortunate Count Mattasich, he was falsely accused of forging the names of Princess Louise and Archduchess Stephanie to bills of exchange. He was imprisoned for four years in a military dungeon. He obtained a pardon at last, after a strong fight in the Austrian parliament. When he got his liberty he found Princess Louise. More than a year ago he succeeded in eloping with the unfortunate daughter of a King.

SLAYER SNELL ANXIOUS ONLY FOR DOG 'CUTE'

Condemned Man Shows No Interest in Impending Fate.

ASKS NO FURTHER HELP

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 16.—Rather than spend the rest of his life in prison, Angles Snell, convicted murderer of Wighaast Kirby, prefers to die in the electric chair. Snell refuses to allow his attorney, Hugo Dubuque, to make a fight to have his sentence changed to life imprisonment.

Indifferent to his fate, Snell does not show that he dreads death in the electric chair. But one thing appears to worry him. In the town of Lockport, Snell's home, his little pet dog Cute still whines for his master. Snell often speaks of the dog and has written several letters to Burton Head, who has the dog, to take good care of him. He asks that Cute never be killed. He speaks to his keepers about the dog and tells them that Cute is his best and staunchest friend.

In the narrowest corner of the New Bedford jail Snell is waiting the time when he will be taken to Charlestown and put under the death watch. Snell's cell is in the lower tier. He has little to do, occasionally he has some light work, such as mending the clothes of other prisoners. He hears up well under the trying ordeal of waiting for death. He maintains that he is innocent of the death of Kirby.

Few friends come to see Snell. In fact, he has few. He talks very little to the jail officials and whenever he does say anything it is almost always about Cute.

Snell has been sentenced to die in the week of December 18. The exact day of his execution has not been set. Ten days before the date he will be taken to the Charlestown State Prison. He will be placed in a cell in "Cherry Hill," where the most famous criminals in Massachusetts are locked up.

After reaching Charlestown he will not be allowed to see any friends. Practically all liberties will be taken from him. He will be allowed spiritual advice if he wishes it.

MANACLES, ON IN JOKE, STAYED ON ALL NIGHT

Key to Handcuffs Broke and the Police Couldn't Help Victim.

APPEAL TO LOCKSMITH

John Teonafoan walked into a locksmith's shop early to-day and howled:

"Get me loose!"

"Yes," seconded Nicholas Prunpen, of No. 177 Albany street, "take 'em off quick, please."

"Em was a pair of handcuffs that bound John's wrists tightly together.

"What ——" exclaimed the locksmith, surveying the pair suspiciously, Nicholas explained.

"My brother in Lowell was a policeman. I now have his uniform, badge, helmet, club and handcuffs. John took dinner with me last night. I wanted to show him how easy it was to arrest a man. So I put the handcuffs on John and the key broke in the lock and they wouldn't come off, and the police couldn't get 'em off, and John has been arrested all night by mistake and they hurt."

Then was about the state of it. Nicholas had shown John after dinner how easy it was to nab a prisoner and handcuff him. He named the episode of the broken key.

"Now You've Done It!"

"Now you've done it, Nick," exclaimed John as both stared at the handcuffs with the broken key plugging the lock, and at John's fast swelling wrists.

"Quick, get 'em off in a minute," cheerfully exclaimed Nicholas, and he brought a pair of shears, a screw driver, a cork screw, a chisel, a tack hammer, a glass cutter, a can opener and a jack knife. His stock of tools was exhausted and none of them opened the lock. They slipped here and there and gouged John's wrists a little more, but that was all.

Nicholas got so excited he didn't remove his brother's uniform which he wore while playing at arresting his guest, but dragged the thoroughly frightened John out to the Lagrange street station.

Nicholas' brother's uniform didn't fit him. He looked excited and worried. John looked scared and sad and his wrists were bloody. People saw them hurrying through the street and believed the perpetrator of the sad-looking deed at last had been apprehended.

No First Aid Worked.

There was nothing doing at the Lagrange Street Station. Everything the lieutenant had on hand that would serve as a tool was tried but the handcuffs stuck.

"We'll go to the Hanover Street Station. They've got a stilson wrench and a bench vise up there and perhaps a screw jack," said Nicholas. He wasn't at all happy. John wasn't half as happy as that and he began saying mean, intimating things about Nicholas that struck home.

All they got at the Hanover Street Station was the merry laugh and advice to go to a locksmith. People followed them in the street. Nicholas looked miserable in his police uniform and his brother's overcoats in Lowell. John looked daggers at Nicholas, and like everything about this time wasn't fit to use at a convention of truck drivers.

There were no locksmiths to be found and so John went back with Nicholas, where he swallowed his pride, ate supper and all, and tried to sleep until morning, when he sought the locksmith.

WINNING AUTO BADLY BURNED

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The French automobile in which Hemery won the Vanderbilt cup race over the Mineola course has been badly damaged by fire, caused, it is believed, by some careless spectator having a lighted cigar or cigarette nearby while the cars were being prepared for shipment back to France. A workman was covered with the blaze in trying to put out the fire.

Drivers and workmen stationed people to keep away from them with matches or cigars, but it is thought that while the gasoline was being drawn from the machine somebody approached with a lighted match. The flames suddenly flashed up from the gasoline can, spread to the automobile, and before they were extinguished damaged it so that extensive repairs will be necessary.

POCKET FULL OF EXPLOSIVES

Arrangements are being made at City Prison to-day for the return to Medfield Insane Hospital of Tobias Levenson, the escaped inmate who was wandering about this city with fuses and materials for making dynamite cartridges in his possession until he was captured on Shawmut avenue, Patrolman Downey of Lagrange street station caught Levenson after a sharp fight.

Downey was patrolling his beat on Shawmut avenue when he saw Levenson acting as he thought suspiciously, stopping by himself and seeming uncertain as to his movements. He hailed him and asked his name. Without a moment's hesitation the stranger answered:

"Tobias Levenson, sir, what can I do for you?"

That was enough for Downey, who intimated that he had better take a walk to the station. This programme did not suit Levenson, who succeeded in breaking away from the officer and darted up Shawmut avenue.

Downey, however, is something of a runner himself, and though the start of the time was well filled, the officer rapidly gained on his man and inside of a block had him again by the collar.

At the station house Levenson showed few of the excited signs of the insane man. He submitted quietly to being searched by the officers in front of the desk, though the latters' eyes stood wide open when the first thing drawn from the prisoner's pocket was a small box of wax fuses. The next thing was a queer-shaped arrangement, which the officers declared was a good imitation of dynamite cartridges.

"What are these things?" asked Lieutenant Ritter, holding them up in front of him.

"Oh, they are just things for mending violins," he replied.

Levenson escaped from the asylum at Medfield on Saturday.

Just before the man was taken into custody he had drawn a small crowd about him and was telling them very excitedly that he had been a friend of Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley, and that he had on several occasions encouraged Czolgosz in the Freedom of Speech.

EAGLE IN SMOKESTACK.

CIVIC CONTROL, KINGDOM OF GOD

—REV. C. M. SHELDON.

That the people of the land are entitled to own and operate public utilities was the emphatic assertion of the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon of Topeka, Kans., author of "Ills Steps," in a sermon he preached yesterday in the Tabernacle Congregational church at Salem.

"The Kingdom of God will not come to this earth," said the clergyman, "until the public ownership of the necessities of life is an established fact.

"The earth belongs to God and all therein is in it. The common necessities, such as oil, coal, heat, medicine, transportation, insurance and everything which goes to lighten our burdens should belong to the people in common.

"No man or group of men ought to be able to control any necessary thing so that by raising its price he can keep it from his brother. Those who believe in the teachings of Jesus must come to the belief in the ownership of public utilities by the people."

FAMILY KILLED IN CROSSING ACCIDENT

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 16.—A railroad crossing accident at Block House, two miles from Mahone Bay station, Lunenburg county, wiped out a whole family.

Henry A. Ernst, accompanied by his wife and son, was driving to church. When crossing the railroad track a light engine struck the team. Mr. Ernst was instantly killed. Mrs. Ernst died in a few hours and the doctors have no hope for the son's recovery.

DYNAMITE BURNS AS WOOD.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Oct. 16.—Four pounds of dynamite was burned up in a fire in the home of William Switzer in Poverty Gulch. Contrary to expectations the freakish explosive quietly burned away as if it had been so many pine sticks.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREAT CASH HOUSE

2300 Silk Waists at 50 Cents on the Dollar

We purchased last Thursday from The New York Waist Co., 106 Greene St., New York City, manufacturers of the famous "Iroquois" Waist, 2300 of the season's choicest and newest Silk Waists at exactly 50 cents on the dollar.

This is one of the greatest purchases of Silk Waists ever made in Boston by any Boston concern. The newest, choicest patterns, with style and dash in every one of them. We don't ask fancy prices, however, but wish as great a sensation made as we made in July with the 1,500 Shirt Waist Suits which we bought and sold in one day. Among these waists are plain colors, changeable silks, all the high shades of evening colors, beautifully trimmed, all dressmaker made and absolutely perfect in fit. We start this sale Tuesday morning at 9:30 in order to give out-of-town patrons an equal chance with those who live in the city. We have divided this entire purchase into five lots, with only one restriction, and that is that we will only sell two to a customer. We have a double purpose in this sale, one of which is to show you one of the most complete and up-to-date Suit Departments in New England. We have been busy all Summer making changes on this floor and ask you to pass judgment on our efforts.

Lot No. 1 consists of a large number of silk waists in assorted colors, sizes and styles. Ranging in price from $3.50 up to $5.00, at the ridiculously low figure of 1.98

We reserve the right to limit the quantity of two to each customer, and no mail nor express orders will be filled.

Lot No. 2 consists of 400 beautiful silk waists, all colors and sizes that would regularly sell from $4.00 to $6.50. This lot will be sold at 2.98

We reserve the right to limit the quantity of two to each customer, and no mail nor express orders will be filled.

Lot No. 3 consists of 300 lovely silk waists, all the newest colorings and shades in a variety of styles, all perfect in fit and dressmaker made. Regularly selling at $5.00 to $7.00. They will be sold at 3.98

We reserve the right to limit the quantity of two to each customer, and no mail nor express orders will be filled.

Lot No. 4 consists of dainty evening waists of high colors including light blue, white and pink, as well as the staple colorings; all fancy trimmed with lace and exceptional in style. These would usually sell for $8.00. Special tomorrow at 4.98

We reserve the right to limit the quantity of two to each customer, and no mail nor express orders will be filled.

Lot No. 5. This lot comprises some of the most beautiful waists ever shown in Boston at the values of $10.00 and $12.00. They are conspicuous on account of their delicacy and uncommonness, are daintily trimmed with lace and made of the choicest of taffetas and peau de cygnes, and a really gorgeous collection. This lot we shall sell at 5.98

We reserve the right to limit the quantity of two to each customer, and no mail nor express orders will be filled.

"WHIRLWIND OF DEATH" IS LATEST THRILLING VAUDEVILLE SENSATION

Autoist Shoots Down Incline, Up Into Space, Turns Somersault, Lands 40 Feet Away.

One Young Woman Has Already Met Death, but Paris Audience Enjoys Blood-Curdling Act.

The latest and most deadly method of breaking your neck to make a modern holiday—a method which has already caused the death of one young woman performer is the aptly-named "Whirlwind of Death," which caused a sensation in a Paris music hall.

Cables from Paris say that in this act the performer rides an ordinary inclined plane in a specially constructed automobile. The auto shoots up a short curved and is projected into space in a nearly level position. But when the vehicle has reached the highest point in its trajectory it is caused, by a clever combination of springs and levers, to turn a complete somersault. After this it continues its thrilling passage through the air to the receiving platform, forty feet away from the point where it left the first section of the course.

A feature that makes this act especially sensational is the auto appearing to stop at the time of the somersault, and thus to be in danger of falling like a pinnacle to the floor below. This is an illusion, however, due to the very low position of the centre of gravity, which causes the inverted body of the woman to move backward at that time faster than the centre is going forward.

For high pay, ranging from $600 to $1,000 a night, women are found to take this perilous ride, while the sensation-mad Parisian audience watches with bated breath and then breaks into wild applause at the conclusion of the act.

WONDER OVER ABSENCE OF COUNCILMAN

Not Seen Since September 24, but Fiancee Thinks He Is All Right.

TOLD NO ONE INTENTIONS

Friends of Councilman James Oliver Higgins of Ward 24, whose marriage to Miss Margaret Thompson of No. 72 Edson street was planned for next month, are wondering at the mysterious absence of the bridegroom-elect. He left his home, No. 33 Callender street, Dorchester, on September 24, and has not been heard from since, so far as can be learned. Miss Thompson, who is organist at St. Matthew's Catholic church, says:

"Mr. Higgins went away several weeks ago, but did not tell me where he was going. I saw him a short time before he disappeared and knew nothing of his intentions. As yet I have not heard from him. I would deny that we are engaged to be married. It is not necessary to publish anything about him as I think he will turn up all right. I believe he went away for his health."

His friends hope he will turn up in a few days and clear up the mystery. He appeared to be in excellent health when last seen, and his sudden departure mystifies his friends.

Councilman Higgins, who has been a member of the bar a few years, entered politics about three years ago. In 1903 he served his first year in the council from Ward 24 and was re-elected last year.

For some time he has been attentive to Miss Thompson and recently their engagement was announced. Miss Thompson called her attorney and the missing man buried his sister recently, and his constant attendance upon the two, during their illness, worked on him.

After Mr. Thompson died Higgins looked forward to taking a short rest. Several of his friends understood that he would be married next month. Miss Agnes Higgins, his sister, was seen at her home and was reluctant to be interviewed.

"Mr. Higgins went away," she said, "but did not tell us where he was going. It was not customary for him to tell us his business. Not one member of the family knows where he is or why he went away. He will be back soon I think, so there is no need of making a fuss about him."

FIRST CONCERT GIVEN BY ELKS

The first concert of the season, given under the auspices of the Order of Elks at the Tremont Theatre, has added a substantial sum to the organization's charity fund. The program was made up of high class vaudeville, headed by Henri French, the mystifying magician and juggler.

Among the other numbers were John W. Harrington, who gave an amusing sketch in minstrelsy; Prof. Burke and his "musical dogs;" Joe Hardman, the Shamen quartette, Kimball and Donovan, Miss Dora Livingstone, May Eddy and Wood and Berry.

VON L. MEYER IS FINED $10

CONCORD, Oct. 16.—The Hon. George Von L. Meyer of Hamilton, United States Ambassador to Russia, has been fined $10 in the Central Middlesex District Court for exceeding the automobile speed limit.

He was represented in court by Prescot Keyes of Concord, a class mate at Harvard.

2200 COLUMBUS KNIGHTS IN LINE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 16.—The Knights of Columbus have broken all their parade records for this State, turning out 2,200 men for their demonstration in this city.

They represented every council in Rhode Island, very large delegations coming from the Blackstone and Pawtuxet valleys. Following the outdoor demonstration there were special services at St. Joseph's Church, and entertainments at various halls.

William P. Nolan was the grand marshal of the day. The marching knights all wore dark suits, with silk hats, and each man carried a cane. There were five bands of music in the column.

BLIND BOYS IN HOT FOOTBALL

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 16.—Eleven blind boys of the Kentucky Institute for the Blind played a game of football with the Crescent Hill eleven, boys who can see, and although beaten, put up a strong game.

Although handicapped by sightless eyes, the boys of the institute eleven executed mass plays, end runs and even fake plays. It was remarkable how the blind boys went into the game. They played so well and so orderly that several times spectators could scarcely be induced to believe they could not see.

CRISIS OF GIRLHOOD

A TIME OF PAIN AND PERIL

Miss Emma Cole Says that Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has Saved Her Life and Made Her Well

How many lives of beautiful young girls have been sacrificed just as they were ripening into womanhood? How many irregularities or displacements have been developed at this important period, resulting in years of suffering!

Miss Emma Cole

Girls' modesty and oversensitiveness often puzzle their mothers and baffle physicians, because they withhold their confidence at this critical period.

A mother should come to her child's aid and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will at this time prepare the system for the coming change and start the menstrual period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities.

Miss Emma Cole of Tullahoma, Tenn., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I want to tell you that I am enjoying better health than I have for years, and I owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"When fourteen years of age I suffered almost constant pain, and for two or three years I had soreness and pain in my side, headaches and was dizzy and nervous, and doctors all failed to help me.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended, and after taking it only a few months I was entirely well. I think it saved my life. Sincerely hope my experience will be a help to other girls who are passing from girlhood to womanhood, for I know your Compound will do as much for them."

If you know of any young girl who is sick and needs motherly advice ask her to write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and she will receive free advice which will put her on the right road to strong, healthy and happy womanhood.

MEN TO RUN WITH HEARST ARE NAMED

Municipal Ownership League Nominated Borough and County Ticket.

MANY DESERT OLD PARTIES

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—For president of the Borough of Manhattan—Thomas Gilleran.

For District-Attorney—Clarence J. Shearn.

For Justice of the Supreme Court —Samuel Seabury.

For Justice of the Court of General Sessions—John Philmeri.

For Sheriff—Joseph W. Cody.

For County Clerk—J. Fairfax McLoughlin.

For Register—Michael Brayer.

For Coroners—Max Stern, Dr. Alfred H. Reidel, Arthur Hagan and Simon Levy.

This borough and county ticket was placed in the field by the executive committee of the Municipal Ownership League, after a long consultation with the committee of three named by the League's convention of Saturday to recommend nominees.

It was the result of the work of the special committee named by the Municipal League convention of Saturday night, and when its selection was announced at the Hearst League headquarters there were vociferous shouts of approval.

Republicans and Tammany Hall Democrats, disgusted with the methods of both the old party machines, thronged to the headquarters of William Randolph Hearst, the nominally candidate of the Municipal League, to offer their cordial allegiances.

Although it was Sunday, Mr. Hearst's managers were kept busy listening to testimony as to desertions from the Republican and Murphy-McCarren camps.

William Graham Brown, chairman of the executive committee of the Direct Nomination League, for ten years secretary of the Brookfield Organization, informed Mr. Hearst that he proposed to organize an independent Republican committee of 1,000 to crystalize Republican sentiment for municipal ownership.

Mr. Brown said he had arranged to open headquarters, somewhere near the centre of political activity, and would unfurl a banner in a few days. Mr. Brown, who was with Mr. Brookfield in all his fights, says he finds overwhelming sentiment among the Independent Republicans for the Hearst ticket.

The city candidates—Mr. Hearst for Mayor, Senator Ford for Comptroller, and Lee Phelps Stokes—and the borough and county nominees will meet in the Hoffman House at three o'clock this afternoon for the purpose of discussing a plan to organize a campaign committee of one thousand representative business men. The indications are that there will be no difficulty in getting five thousand business men to serve on such a committee.

RAN MILE TO GET BURGLAR SUSPECT

Joseph Rochetti of No. 24 Linden street, Medford, was arrested on a charge of breaking and entering after he had been chased for a mile by Patrolman Daniel Conners. Conners says that he found Rochetti standing by an open window of the New England Brick Company's boarding house at night with a big bag in his hand. When the man ran Conners fired three shots at him in vain, then chased him.

EXPECT CLASH WITH BRITISH PATROL TO-DAY

Thirteen American Fishing Vessels and All Available Police Will Meet.

NATIVES OPPOSE DICTUM

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Oct. 16.—Thirteen American fishing schooners are due in the Bay of Islands to-day and all the available government patrols and police are ordered to meet them to see that the fishing laws are strictly observed. A clash is regarded here as more than probable.

The government has declared that in case an attempt is made to ship Newfoundlers as fishermen by the Americans, or to purchase from the natives, the vessels so offending will be seized.

Several of the American fishermen have declared that they will employ Newfoundlers and this evade the law. One American, the Mercer, has engaged forty men and has hired two schooners to take them across Cabot Strait where they will be shipped. The cutters Fiona and Ingraham are already on the spot and other cutters are hourly expected.

Sir Edward P. Morris, minister of justice and the acting premier, denies that there is any friction, but says that the questions of whether Americans can purchase herring for food, or whether they can employ Newfoundlers are in doubt.

A mass meeting of fishermen was held and the government was memorialized in a resolution asking that the edict be annulled. The request has been refused. The people along the coast who depend for their livelihood on the American are determined to risk arrest and punishment by violating the law as soon as the herring strike the coast.

Andrew A. Barrett, secretary of the fishermen's mass meeting, in a letter declares that when the Americans have the right to enter the bays and inlets and fish, it is unprecedented treachery to forbid Newfoundlanders to sell fish to them. He concludes with this statement:

"Our people, while respecting the powers that be, are lovers of freedom and fair play, and will resist to the uttermost any effort that will tend to deny them those rights under the British constitution."

The Fiona is holding up all vessels on the West coast and, taking the names of the crews in order to prevent the hiring of Newfoundlanders outside the three-mile limit or of fishermen from Cape Breton.

The imperial government has cabled the colonial authorities to go very carefully in the present dispute and to avoid all friction with the Americans.

ENGINE CARRIES CHILD ON PILOT

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 16.—Anna Lutz, thirteen years old, of Evanston, was found sitting on the pilot of a freight locomotive at Winnetka, grasping a little dog in her arms. The child had run to the middle of the track to save the animal from being killed by the approaching train, and had just picked it up when the train struck her. She was thrown upon the pilot, and, unseen by the men in the cab, was carried four miles before she was found and released, uninjured, from her perilous perch.

"L" MAN APPOINTED AUDITOR AT EXETER

CONGRESS MAY LIFT DUTY ON GIFTS TO ALICE

Special Act Necessary to Admit in This Way $100,000 Trophies of the Far East.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—If the President's daughter desires to keep all the costly presents made to her by emperors, sultans and other potentates during her tour of the Orient, she will have to ask the assistance of Congress. In no other way will she be able to bring them in duty free, unless she shall donate them to some national institution.

The law makes no exception in favor of the President or the members of his family. Consequently, when Miss Alice arrives in San Francisco harbor she will have to declare to the customs officers the value of all the articles she brings with her. The appraisers will then assess the duty on them according to law.

If the gifts are really worth as much as reports have it—and the estimates carry the value as high as $100,000—Miss Roosevelt could not afford to pay the duty, which would amount approximately to her father's salary for a year.

There is a precedent for this. General Sherman after the civil war, sent aboard the Khedive of Egypt desired to give him a valuable present. It was pointed out to him that the general could not accept it without authorization by act of Congress. So the Khedive presented the gift to his daughter. It consisted of a diamond necklace, the value of which was popularly estimated at $500,000. Congress allowed the gems to come in free, passing a special act for the purpose.

PERSISTENCY WINS BRIDE.

BREAK IN BIG MAIN CAUSES WATER FAMINE

Thousands of People in Buffalo Go to Work with Unwashed Faces.

BUFFALO, Oct. 16.—By the bursting of a supply pipe in Niagara street, the worst water famine ever experienced in Buffalo prevails to-day. The entire West side is without water. Not a drop has been had in the houses of 150,000 persons since 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. To-day those who had fire ignited to secure water.

Great suffering in the hospitals and other institutions is reported.

In many instances the people in the afflicted district drank milk, and those living near the flour and cereal carried flour in buckets to their homes. Hundreds of men and women who work down town and are compelled to leave at an early hour, appeared at their places of business with unwashed faces and empty stomachs.

A large territory in the vicinity of the break in the water main was flooded. Cellars were filled with water, and streets became like small rivers.

Great indignation prevails, as the water department is accused of carelessness.

CHARGED WITH TWO BREAKS—CONFESSED

George W. Davis, thirty three, of Brockton, was arrested on Green street, charged with breaking and entering the offices of the Boston & Maine railroad at Merrimac and Reed's Ferry, N. H. The breaks charged against Davis were made last Sunday, when 500 railroad tickets and a date stamp were stolen. It was alleged Davis was seen in the localities Saturday night.

Davis was taken to Nashua, where he confessed and showed where he hid the booty. About $1,800 worth of tickets were recovered in the woods near Merrimac, it is said.

AUTOPSY TO SOLVE WOMAN'S DEATH PUZZLE

Body Covered with Bruises, Husband Says He Found Her Dead on Coming Home.

Special to the Boston American.

WORCESTER, Oct. 16.—Multiple bruises on the body of Mrs. Lucy Babcom, whose husband, Andrew W. Babcom, reported to the police he found her dead when he returned home, have decided Medical Examiner F. H. Baker to order an autopsy to-day.

The police and medical examiner were told by Babcom that his wife fainted Friday and fell to the floor, striking the bruises. The police say that there are bruises on the face, arms and body. It is a mystery to them how a woman could fall in a faint and receive bruises on so many portions of her body at once.

Mrs. Babcom was about 40 years old. The couple lived at No. 80 Belmont street, and, so far as the police have learned, have always lived amicably together. Sunday morning Babcom went to Lake Quinsigmond and, according to his report to the police, found his wife dead when he returned home.

HISTORIC HOUSE FOR CHILDREN'S HOME

LOWELL, Oct. 16.—The historic Dr. Savory homestead, in which Abraham Lincoln slept while in this city on a stumping tour, April 30, 1848, has been purchased for a children's home by the officers of the Lowell Humane Society.

FIND BODY IN RIVER.

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 16.—Discovery of the body of Conductor John A. Starrett in the Penobscot River, near Hampden, has cleared up the mystery surrounding his disappearance last Monday. It is thought Starrett, who worked for the Maine Central Railroad, was overcome by illness while walking along the river bank and fell into the water.

LABOR UNIONS INDORSE MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

Metal Workers and Machinists Line Up with League. New Clubs Organized in Cambridge and Boston.

The organized working men are joining the business and professional men in the membership of the Municipal Ownership League. The Sheet Metal Workers' Union No. 17, with a membership of more than 400, at its meeting indorsed the League and the principles for which it stands.

News comes the Bunker Hill Lodge, No. 956, International Association of Machinists, with a large membership, is heartily support of the movement.

This setting by Bunker Hill Lodge was taken on at the last meeting in Charlestown. The resolutions were forwarded to the secretary of the Municipal Ownership League by Fred H. Chase, recording secretary, of No. 3 Park street, Chelsea, and are as follows:

"Municipal Ownership Vital."

Be it resolved, that it is the sense of this meeting that municipal ownership of public utilities, such as gas and street railways, as advocated by the Municipal Ownership League, is a vital matter, and that it should receive the earnest and prompt attention of every citizen, regardless of political affiliation.

Be it further resolved, That we believe that of the city of Boston owned and operated its lighting plant the people would receive better and cheaper gas than they now receive.

Dr. Thomas Doyle, of No. 79 Williams street, in joining the League adds to his letter to the secretary:

"And I will further state that I will give medical treatment free for the next sixty days to any member of the League in wards 2, 9 and 12."

Augustus Soaver of No. 175 First street, Cambridge, has organized a Municipal Ownership Club in the college city. A meeting of the members of the principles will be held at his home on Thursday evening of this week. Mr. Soaver requests all those who wish to join in the establishment of a young League in that city to be present at the Thursday evening meeting.

M. S. Drew of No. 140 Eustis street, who has organized a club in Ward 12, writes as follows to the secretary of the league:

Secretary Municipal Ownership League:

Permit me to thank the BOSTON AMERICAN, through the Municipal Ownership League, for the noble service it is rendering the people through its educational articles on public ownership. As you are doubtless aware I am an admirer and supporter of this great movement, which will awaken the people to a realization of the power which is in their hands in public matters.

Municipal ownership will be the finale of the political boss, as well as the blind-working corporations. Were municipals controlled by the citizens of the people's money would not be squandered by the aldermanic rings, Menzies and Dupee gang and their political leaders.

The people are awakening to the actual value of their strength. With the ballot as their weapon for protection they will yet accomplish the work laid out for them in restoring to themselves those things which were stolen in money in the hands of the selfish political bosses and heartless corporations.

Yours truly,
MICHAEL S. DREW.

October 14, 1905.

Preparations are being made for a rousing rally at the Dudley Street Opera House tomorrow evening under the auspices of the Jefferson Municipal League of Ward 12. A well has been prepared for the occasion, and a number of prominent men have been invited to make addresses. Among those who will speak are Senator David Leahy of the Fifth Suffolk district, J. Leonard, democratic candidate for Senator in the Ninth District.

It is the editorial page of the BOSTON AMERICAN today will be found a series of the popular lessons on municipal ownership by Professor Parsons. A blank will also be found there and anyone wishing to join the league and so will be filling it out and forwarding it to the secretary of the league.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

At the meeting of the Boston Central Labor Union Martin F. Joyce was nominated by electoral president. Vice-president Peter H. McNally, president of the Teamsters' Joint Council; Secretary Henry Abrahams of the Clamdiggers, Sergeant-at-Arms John J. Fenton of the Coal Teamsters, as advance nominations. Henry Abrahams for his twentieth consecutive re-election.

Secretary Henry Abrahams of the Clamdiggers, Treasurer Philip B. Sweet of the Cooperative Union, and Sergeant-at-Arms John J. Fenton of the Coal Teamsters, Union were also unanimously re-elected. This is Mr. Abrahams's twenty-first consecutive election as secretary; he was assistant secretary for years previous to having been secretary on the death of the late "Neal" O'Donnell.

Arthur W. Clark of the Grocers' Clerks, assistant secretary, declined re-election and John F. Byrne, business representative of the Theatrical Stage Employes' Union was elected in his stead.

Miss Anna T. Bowen, Patrick D. Bailey, and Ira M. Bidwell were elected assistants. D. J. Gallagher, Charles T. Scott and George F. Tighe were elected trustees.

Treasurer Philip B. Sweet was elected the delegate to the American Federation of Labor convention at Pittsburg next month.

The meeting appointed a committee to call on the Boston Elevated next week, after hearing the report of the special committee appointed some time ago to ask Fire Commissioner Wells for more pay, shorter hours and wages for the men employed in the fire alarm service.

The meeting indorsed the working card of the Building Trades Council.

Secretary Henry Abrahams, who had been appointed to visit the local unions of college at the Civic Service House, Salem street, made a glowing report of the possibilities.

ELECTRICAL MEN STRIKE.

At a meeting of Electrical Workers' Union No. 103 it was voted that no member go to work for any concern or employer who has not signed the union's agreement.

The reports show that twelve firms have signed. The number of men employed by the firms who have not signed is fifty-seven, but as one firm has practically decided to sign it is figured that not more than fifty men will be out this morning.

The agreement of the Electrical Workers' Union with the Electrical Contractors' Association expired some time ago. Nine months ago negotiations began for a new agreement. From all indications it would appear that the Contractors' Association has entered into an alliance with Employers' and International Vice-President Everett W. Mallory, who has been active in labor affairs, have been calling on the employers individually. They have had a series of conferences with one or two in the Staff Board of Conciliation, and a total of seven firms have signed as individuals.

8-HOUR MOVEMENT GAINS.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 16.—The officers of the International Typographical Union have issued a bulletin which says that agreements have been reached between 240 local unions and employers whereby an eight-hour day has been established or is to be January 1.

At the close of the fifth week of the strike men are still out in fifty-three cities, although it is said that only a few men are left in a number of places.

In more than one cities and towns printers are working on agreements which will expire January 1 or later.

LONGSHOREMEN INDIGNANT.

The members of Deutsche Longshoremen's Assembly, No. 14,062, K. of L., are indignant over the alleged treatment of their representatives who called on the Boston agent of the Metropolitan Steamship Company with a request for an increase of wages from $14 a week to $15 and recognition of the assembly. The request was refused point blank.

It is intimated that if trouble results because of the reception accorded the representatives of the more longshoremen and freight handlers affiliated with the Knights of Labor in Boston will take sympathetic action.

At the meeting five members were admitted and five applications received.

ALLIANCE ELECT OFFICERS.

The Boston Building Trades Alliance has organized by the election of John H. Carr of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Union, New England officer and organizer of his union, president, as president; A. M. Riddell of Hoisting and Portable Engineers' Union 4, vice-president, and international vice president of the Engineers' Union, as vice president; Business Agent John F. Kennedy of Boston Sheet Metal Workers' Union 17, as secretary, and President John J. McLaughlin of Boston Electrical Workers' Union 103, who is also the New England president of that craft, as treasurer.

Eight big trades had delegates at the permanent organization meeting, and it is expected that next Friday night, when the Alliance will meet again at 994 Washington street, several other big trades will affiliate by sending delegates.

EXPECT WAGE ADVANCE.

Reports from Fall River indicate that within a short time the Fall River Cotton Manufacturers' Association will grant an advance in wages to the operatives, of which there are upward of 25,000 employed at the present time.

No action fixing the amount of an advance has yet been taken, though it is expected an official announcement will be made during the week.

The manufacturers admit that labor conditions are forcing the advance. Business is good, but operatives are not plentiful existing wages and all mills are not able to run their full capacity.

LABOR NOTES.

Rox. L. S. Yates, ex-Mayor of Rutland, Vt., the international president of the Hod Carriers' Union, was tendered a reception in Wells Memorial Building.

Painters' District Council of Eastern Massachusetts elected a committee of three to draft by-laws and rules to govern the council. Committee from Union 7 will meet tonight at 45 Kilby street. The meetings of the applications for charters from Unions 1 and 2 will be considered.

Beginning January 1 the members of Trade Alliance Steamship Wharf Clerks' Association 1,000 will receive an increase in wages of $5 per week, it is announced. Their pay is now $22.50 a week.

Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, No. 592, has called a meeting for Monday night at No. 133 Rhode Island avenue, Roxbury. It is expected that Homer D. Call of Syracuse, international secretary, will be present.

Engineers' Union, No. 207, yesterday held the election of Fall and Winter officers. Several members were admitted and the union elected a delegate with which to organize in Chelsea. Arrangements are to be made this week to organize the Stationary Firemen's Union.

Boston Boot Workers' Union, No. 3; Boston Union No. 192, Boot and Shoe Workers; No. 18 and Metal Polishers, Buffers and Platers' Union No. 13 will hold a joint meeting in Eagle Hall Monday night at No. 133 Rhode Island avenue, Roxbury. It is expected that Homer D. Call of Syracuse, international secretary, will be present.

Miss Katherine Reardon has been unanimously elected president of Boston Trade Workers' Union. Miss James Harrison was elected vice-president, Miss Mary O'Donnell, treasurer, Miss Annie M. Sullivan, secretary; financial secretary, Charles Matthews; sergeant-at-arms, Patrick Dooley; delegate to the 22nd Meeting of Trade and return to this city, Miss Annie M. Sullivan; delegate to the local work in the interests of the Boston Union.

SEEK AND MISS IN SAME HOTEL

DENVER, Col., Oct. 16.—J. J. Murray of Victor, Col., and Miss Sadie Stewart of Cripple Creek, Col., came to meet in this city and be married, but they missed each other. Murray registered at the Brown Palace hotel without seeing his fiancée, and she registered at another hotel without seeing him. Each declined because the dancer failed to appear, both the girl and Murray left the city. She did not arrive on the train she expected would bring her to Denver, and Murray, who met several times, did not find her. He told no one in the hotel of his troubles.

Miss Stewart went to the hotel, but was equally secretive when she first arrived, and they did not meet until the clerk learned the truth and found Murray. The people were married at night and went to Victor in the morning.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 16.—Official notice that the Emperor of Japan ratified the Russo-Japanese peace treaty yesterday has been given the Foreign Office. Emperor Edda, the American charge d'affaires.

The French minister at Tokio, at the same time, informed the Japanese governments that the Emperor Nicholas had signed the treaty.

CHRONIC DISEASES

I cure where others fail. For 25 years my specialty has been chronic, obstinate diseases in both men and women. I cure cancers without the use of absorption method. No knife. No cutting. No blood. Only healing balm and nature's wonderfully curative remedies. My own method for curing diseases of the eye, ear, throat, pelvic troubles works wonders. I cure diseases of men in half the time most other physicians do.

GIRL IS SERIOUSLY HURT IN AUTO SPILL

Miss Allen Walker of Newton is in a hotel in Charlestown, N. H., suffering from severe injuries received in an automobile accident. She was riding in a steam carriage with William Pike, a Newton electrician. The forward axle of the car broke, throwing out both riders. Pike escaped with slight cuts and bruises, but Miss Walker was terribly bruised about the head, face and forearms.

TRAPPED BEAR DIES OF HUNGER IN TREE

GORHAM, N. H., Oct. 16.—The body of a bear which had one foot caught in a trap and had climbed a tree in its frantic desperation and then died from hunger from starvation, has been found by Frank Barnett, a local woodsman. The bear, fully weighed 200 pounds.

OVERCOME BY GAS WHILE TAKING BATH

PUTNAM, Ct., Oct. 16.—Israel L. Lindsey was nearly asphyxiated here by a leaky gas apparatus. Gasps were heard, entrance was effected through a window, and Lindsey was found unconscious in a bath. The chauffeur, Louis Zerlois, of Albany, N. Y., having died Wednesday.

CANADIAN SENATOR DIES OF INJURIES

Senator George T. Fulford, of Brockville, Ont., is dead at the Newton City Hospital from injuries received in an automobile accident a week ago. He was the second victim of the same accident, physicians worked over him for several hours before he was revived.

FOUND ONLY 5 MEN PHYSICALLY PERFECT

CINCINNATI, Oct. 16.—After having served for twelve years as civilian surgeon of the United States Army recruiting station, in Cincinnati, Dr. T. J. Minor, of No. 512 West Fourth street, has retired from that position. During his service Dr. Minor examined more than 7,000 applicants, and of that number, he says, he found but five who were perfect specimens of manhood, from a sculptor's viewpoint.

A LIFE STORY IN CLASSIFIED ADS.

CHAPTER III.

The Classified Sewing Machine.

Said the wife to a friend, "A stitch, when in time,
Will, so the old adage says, often save nine.
I do my own sewing and baby's clothes make,
But I also save time as the stitches I take.

My husband a sewing machine bought for me.
A want ad in the AMERICAN he chanced to see;
It told of a place where machines you will find:
Machines at all prices, machines of all kind."

If you have a factory, or shop large or small,
You may want machinery for part or for all—
An engine, a motor, shaft, pulley or wheel—
An AMERICAN want ad is a bargain appeal.

O'BRIEN TO FIGHT ON THE LEVEL

Quiets Suspicions of Frisco Sports by Saying He Can Beat Kauffman.

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—Jack O'Brien, the original wandering knight of pugilistica, pranced into town the other day. His lance was poised, his plumes were tossing, he was "gaily bedight" and looking for trouble. He found it a-plenty.

Jack was waylaid by Aleck Greggains, matchmaker of the San Francisco A. C., and asked if he would box Al Kauffman on October 27. Jack did not blush and murmur, "This is so sudden," and plead for time. He said he would be delighted to have a tilt at Delaney's new find, providing, of course, the emoluments were tempting.

Then signatures were attached to a contract calling for a twenty-round contest. The match did not take hold very readily with the sporting public. O'Brien, the discontented ones said, is nothing short of a butterfly boxer who is extremely particular in choosing his fling company and systematically avoids all engagements which promise rough usage. Such a man, they argued, would not hook up with a husky young ennuyer like Kauffman unless he had formulated some plan for protection against assault and battery.

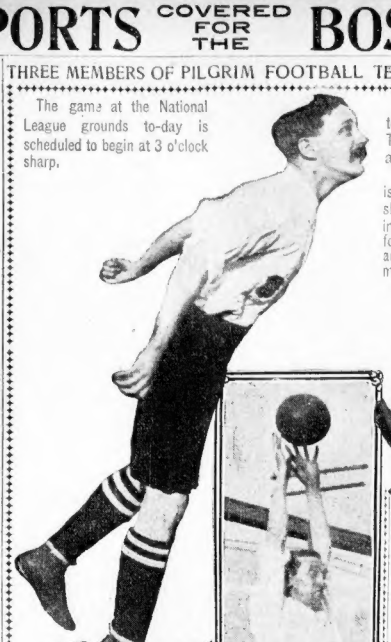
This kind of talk put Mr. O'Brien on the defensive. He admitted that he had gone in extensively for bobtail contests, but it was simply because that was the kind of Queensberry entertainments in vogue in the city where he had his home and spent the most of his time.

"I want to fight Kauffman because I believe I can defeat him," said O'Brien. "He may have boomed up as a wonder, but I think I can take care of any man who has not had at least a couple of years' experience in the professional side of pugilism."

Although some of the unbelievers are still looking askance at Jack, it must be said that he has made out a fairly strong case for himself.

THREE MEMBERS OF PILGRIM FOOTBALL TEAM THAT PLAYS BOSTON TEAM HERE TO-DAY

The game at the National League grounds to-day is scheduled to begin at 3 o'clock sharp.



Captain F. Milner.

Here are printed three pictures of the Pilgrim football team, who play here to-day against the Greater Boston team. The players are: J. Milner, captain; Sir Charles Kirkpatrick and E. J. Woodward.

In the photograph Kirkpatrick is seen stopping a drooping shot in goal. Woodward is the international centre forward for past three years. Milner is an English football player of marked ability.

SHERIDAN MADE RECORD THROW WITH DISCUS

NEW YORK, Oct. 16. Martin J. Sheridan, of the Irish American Athletic Club, all-round champion of the Amateur Athletic Union and champion discus thrower of the world, excelled all his previous efforts with the discus, establishing a new world's record of 138 feet 3 inches, which throw was made at the annual fall games of the Irish American A. C. at Celtic Park, Long Island city.

LEWIS TO STUDY LAW.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 16.—"Phil" Lewis of the Brooklyn Nationals has determined to make a lawyer of himself. With this determination in view he has come to Ithaca and entered Cornell College of Law. It was while in Cornell taking a four-year course in engineering that Lewis first showed his ability on the diamond.

PRESIDENT MAY SEE SOCKER GAME

The English players who are in this country with the Pilgrims' Association foot ball eleven are eager to have a chance of playing the imported style of sport where President Roosevelt will have a chance to judge of its merits. Yesterday the men were the guests of President Eliot of Harvard in order to explain to him the game which the Pilgrims will play against the All-Boston eleven this afternoon.

Captain Fred Milnes of the English eleven has been in communication with President Roosevelt in regard to the college and the game. He said Vivian Woodward, rated one of the best of English players, will leave tomorrow for Washington to see the President and to invite him to be present at one of the games they play. They are perfectly willing, Milnes says, to take the team to Washington at their own expense in order to show the President the merits of the game.

Friends of Mike Sullivan Say

GARDNER FEARS TWIN

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—Let there be no more talk of a match between Battling Nelson and Jimmy Gardner made the frank avowal to the writer the other day that he cannot make that weight. This simply means that if the pair meet the Dane will have to make concessions, and as both Nelson and Nolan have declared time and time again that they will not budge an ounce, it must be admitted that the prospects of a clash between the slugging pair of the Lowell ind are remarkably slim.

It is also well that Gardner has placed himself on record in regard to the 133 pound match.

A match with Nelson means big money, and as the Dane is a struggling chap, mouthed about weight conditions, there was always a chance that Gardner might have been tempted by the "short end" of a big purse and have agreed to the Dane's terms. An unsatisfactory contest and maybe another scandal would have resulted so that again I say, "What's the use?"

Personally I was always convinced that Gardner could not do 133 for fighting purposes. It is the habit with most pugilists to claim that they can make a lower weight than they usually scale. When you find a fighter signing throughout the year to box at 135 or 136 pounds before entering the ring it is a safe bet that that is his best notch. They generally find out what suits them and stay with it.

Friends of Mike (Twin) Sullivan are saying that Jimmy Gardner is doing his best to avoid the Boston lightweight. Gardner says he will surely meet Sullivan before one of the San Francisco clubs next month, but Sullivan's cronies want to know why if Jimmy's intentions are honorable he does not cover Mike's forfeit of $500 which has been put up to bind a match.

WHITE MAY NOT DEFEND GOLF TITLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—There is an uncertainty as to whether A. W. White will be able to get away from his studies at Harvard to defend the intercollegiate golf championship title this week. The holder of the team championship, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania and Columbia are to be represented in the team contest, the matches starting on Tuesday. Cornell, although a member, is a doubtful starter. The team championship will be settled on Wednesday afternoon, and the individual championship will begin on Thursday morning, when sixteen will qualify, and settle their semi-final play on Saturday.

Princeton, which may claim Douglas Laird, W. T. Weed, Peters, Jr., S. J. Sloan and Howard J. Gerry, is the team to shoot for as an opportunity to win its first team race in this time. It is expected that one or more Western colleges would apply for membership, but this has not happened. A reason may be that the West used the majority of its material to Eastern colleges. Every second boy Who will swing clubs on the best golfers den City, should one care to ask the question, will be found to be a Westerner. Bruce Smith of Chicago will captain the Yale team, which will include Dwight Partridge and Robert Abbott.

Since the first team started at the Apawamis Club, in the Fall of 1897, Harvard has won six and Yale three times. Princeton has reached the final at three of the tournaments, and this time the plum seems ripe for a picking. Five members of last year's team are left from Harvard and Yale. Three Princeton players have won the individual: P. Bayard, Jr., Percy Pyne, 2d, and F. G. Reinhart, while Yale has had two and Harvard the other four champions.

LANCIA SELLS FAST AUTO

HAMPSTEAD, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Lancia, one of the Scandanavian Italian team, who was first in the Vanderbilt race until his collision in the eighth lap, sold his car to-day to a man in New York for $15,000. The owner's name is withheld. This is the car that performed the best work throughout the race until the last seventy-seven miles. Nazarro, another member of the Italian team, is also reported as receiving the sum of $15,000 for his car, which was also in the Vanderbilt race and performed creditably.

This afternoon at the National League grounds the first international match in "Socker" football will be played between the Pilgrims, the noted British team, and a picked eleven from Greater Boston.

The foreigners have been in this country for several weeks playing in all the big cities of Canada and the States, and came here for the chief purpose of illustrating the benefits and beauties over the American college game of football.

All the members of the team are strictly amateurs who have heartily entered into the idea of demonstrating to the sport-loving public on this side of the Atlantic the merits of their game over that which is played here.

Pleased With Reception.

Since the team has arrived on American soil the players have been shown the greatest hospitality at every point they stopped, and they are very much delighted at the treatment accorded them.

The object of this game to-day is to elucidate the superiority of the English style of play and its advantages over the extremely brutal and injurious effects that characterize the college pastime, and for that reason letters of invitation have been sent to all the prominent football experts and authorities to see and judge for themselves.

President Roosevelt has shown his interest and is determined to see one of the games before the Englishmen depart for home, either in New York or this city.

International Contests.

There are thirteen players in the party and the team has been very successful on its long being defeated but once. Among the team are Sir Charles Kirkpatrick, Bart., and Sir Ernest Cecil Cochrane and they are using every effort to have the game introduced into this country and thereby pave the way for international contests.

The tour was not planned with the view of agitation against mass plays in football, but to show the open play in the socker game that much of the undesirable elements might be eradicated by a substitution of the English type of sport.

Saturday the team played at Fall River and also in the fortnight they are here the Greater Boston team, which will be made up of all the prominent players in the State, with a Harvard man at the head.

Walter Pollitt, the best referee of the Merchants' Valley League, has been selected for referee. C. O. Wright, of the Pilgrims, and R. H. Squires, of Harvard, will be the linesmen. There will be two forty-five minute halves. The game is scheduled to begin at 3 o'clock sharp. It will be over by 5 o'clock, as the intermission between halves is only five minutes.

The Pilgrims have been invited to attend Keith's Theatre to-night by Manager Smith and have accepted. They will leave for New York to-morrow night and will play there on Wednesday and at the University of Pennsylvania on October 24. They will sail for home on October 25.

IN INTERNATIONAL BOXING MATCH FRIDAY

WALSH TO MEET STANLEY

International matches are rare in this part of the country, but a bout is scheduled at the Douglas Athletic Club on Friday night which will bring together the leading bantam weights of both America and England.

Digger Stanley is the little Britisher and Jimmy Walsh is to wear the stars and stripes when the pair step into the ring at the big Chelsea club for their fifteen round stunt to a decision.

They are to battle at 118 pounds ringside, and the winner can easily claim the world's championship in that class and be recognized, as there are no boys of their calibre who can make the 118 pound limit.

That Stanley can go some is evident by the two marks he has had with Walsh when the little Newton fighter went to England. Walsh won the first fight by twenty rounds and got a draw in the second clash of the same distance.

Both boys have gone through a careful preparation for this important point in their career and will be in the best condition of their lives when the gong rings.

Stanley has made a very favorable impression in his training in the Hub, as the attends strictly to business and looks more rugged than most of the American boys of his weight.

It will be the finest exhibition from a scientific standpoint that has taken place in years, as both are masters of the game, and it will be a big treat to get a line on the two English stylists.

In the preliminaries Willie Hinn, of Cambridge, and Jimmy Carroll, of the North End, and Kid Barrish hook up with Young Jeffries.

To-night marks the opening of the Berkeley Cycle Club boxing shows at Beacon street rink, when Albert Kid Belmont and Young Cahill of Roxbury tower in the best of the three rounds go.

A good card has been arranged for the premises, and there will be some lively stepping while the bill is being run off.

The contest between Terry McGovern, the ex-featherweight champion, and Tommy Murphy, of Philadelphia, Wednesday night will be another hot mill. Though they are only six rounds, there is liable to be a knockout inside that limit. It may be a repetition of the Hyde and Murphy encounter, but the supporters of McGovern say that he has come back to his old form and will surprise the public. Such a statement is hard to credit. Murphy is one of the best, if not the very best, featherweights in the country and he does not figure that the few pounds advantage in weight that McGovern will have on him will lessen his chances. The boys are to weigh in at 126 pounds on the afternoon. Murphy's best weight is 122 pounds. From appearances McGovern has taken quite hard for the bout and he feels certain of putting Murphy away in the first three rounds. But no matter who wins, he will know he has been in the ring.

Another mill that is of interest to the local sports is that between Twin (Twin) Sullivan and Tom Burns at Los Angeles to-morrow night. This will be the second time this pair have clashed, they having fought a draw at Seattle. Happy Smith, man made his trip to Alaska. It was a hard fight and there was little to choose between them at the end.

Charley O'Rourke, who has been out of the game for some time, is to shy his castor in the ring again to-morrow night at Valley Falls. His opponent will be the colored boxer, Rogarides Hyde. O'Rourke is in any kind of shape he should trim Hyde quite easily.

Dartmouth vs. Williams at Hanover, N. H.

The eyes of the college world at Cambridge opened wide yesterday when it was known that Dan Knowlton, for three years tackle on Harvard's varsity team eleven and in 1903 chosen All-American tackle was to play football for Harvard again this year.

Knowlton played right tackle on the Harvard teams of 1902 and 1903. He is a tall man standing over six feet and weighing close to 200 pounds. His appearance makes the question of the final makeup of the Crimson eleven more problematical than ever. With Squires, Brill, Montgomery, Spear and Knowlton as candidates for tackle it is very hard to name the final choice.

Injuries Bother Harvard.

The injuries to Pierce, Squires and Montgomery which will not permit them to do any real work for nearly two weeks yet is seriously hurting the development of the Harvard eleven.

Harvard's practice games are now over and from now on Harvard will meet teams that will give the Crimson real games. Next Saturday Harvard journeys to West Point for the annual battle with West Point. This will be a critical test for the Crimson, for, unless the Harvard men show more strength in this contest, there will be small hope that Reid can round a team into shape to meet Pennsylvania and Yale games to be played between the West Point and Pennsylvania contests.

Why Parker Has Been Idle.

Parker has been playing the best game at guard of any of the candidates for that position on the field. For a time of his weight Parker is remarkably active, and can get down the field on punts with vitality make him of great assistance to the rest of the eleven as a leader. Kerburg is working into a very good man for the second team only to get hurt through the injuries of Montgomery. Brill did a part of the punting in the Spring field game and his kicking was very promising. No matter in what form he gets the limelight after his weight makes the ball carry. From his work last Saturday there seems to be no reason why in Brill Harvard should not have an unusually good punter.

May Try Spear at End.

It is probable that Spear will be tried out at end this week. He is a heavy man, weighing 195 pounds, but a very fast runner. He is also inexperienced, but with the great amount of material on hand and the scarcity of ends, Reed well probably try Spear at right end. O'Brien, Soucy and Dunn have been playing left end all the season, put up a very promising game against Springfield.

Coach Reed Leads Harvard against Springfield Training School, when viewed in comparison with the score of 29 to 0 made by Yale but two days before, has caused a general dampening of hopes at Harvard. It is realized that comparative scores do not tell an entire tale and that Harvard had an off day in handling the ball Saturday, and besides tried out a new form of punting, the fullback kick but the difference in the two scores can not be overlooked, and Harvard men feel that Reid has a long ways to lead his Harvard eleven before he can hope to compete on even terms with the New Haveniles.

Harvard students are beginning to wonder when Captain Hurley is going to get into the game. He is injury free, and with the important games of the year coming fast the undergraduate world is feeling that it's time he was getting into the game.

INTERESTING FIGURES ON GREAT SERIES BETWEEN GIANTS AND ATHLETICS

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The most striking thing about the world's series games between the New York Nationals and Philadelphia Americans was the fact that every game was a shutout. The latter took the four shutouts handed to the Philadelphias. Complete and artistic was the triumph over the Athletics. The latter made fourteen hits off Mathewson in the three games, an average of 4.2-3 hits a game, and when a pitcher can hold a good hitting team down like that in three straight games he is pitching world's championship ball sure enough.

The figures which follow show how decisively the New Yorks outplayed their opponents. They excelled them in batting, fielding, base running and long distance hitting, though there was not a hit longer than a two-bagger in the series. This was due in part to the fact that several long hits were nullified by baggers by ground rules, necessary on account of the size of the crowd. Bresnahan, by his fine all around work, was as near to being the star of the New York aggregation as anybody else. He was the best batter on either side. Dan Hillery did surprisingly well with the stick. Topsy Hartsel was the best hitter on the Philadelphia side and the only one of the lot to steal a base. It is worthy of note that after Powers went in to catch New York's base stealing suffered, Powers being an improvement over Schreck in throwing to bases.

Dahlen, Devlin, Mathewson, Donlin, Monte Cross, Lord and Davis all stood out prominently by their steady, sharp fielding. Team work at bat and in field and strong pitching were leading factors in New York's success. The records follow:

HARD WORK AHEAD FOR YALE ELEVEN

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 16.—With the passing of the mildweek games the Yale eleven will begin the period of complicated plays which will mark the season. The addition of plays to the Yale repertory which will more than double Yale's play-ing strength. Yale can go into larger scores than her team of last season did up to October 15, with the aid of nothing but straight attack, straight line plunging practically all which have been attempted.

Some tackle back formations will be tried this week. Forbes, the former Wesleyan captain, will be Yale's main stay in this kind of attack as Foster's absence from campaign guard, has been shown up in dashing fashion in running back punts and in defensive work, but he has not been tried at running with the ball and the time is so short in which to teach him the running game that he is not likely to be depended upon much in the big games. Yale will depend for her gains principally in their regulations at tackle and more use of tackles in the past few years of any of the positions on her team. Hinkey, Bloomer, Sullivan, Hillman, Bloomer and Hogan.

Forbes Looks Good.

Forbes was a guard at Wesleyan and Bigelow was a guard on the Yale freshman eleven last year. They have, however, played in the tackle game in wonderfully quick fashion, but much of their success is due to the coaching of Ralph Bloomer, the greatest tackle in Yale's history.

Bloomer was a Yale star tackle, one of the greatest tackles in Yale's history.

Bloomer is coaching the Yale team can be regarded as settled at this time than on any day since 1900, when the team as nothing was settled during the entire season. Captain Sheffield Smith will, as a matter of course, hold down his job, but his running mate in right end is still in doubt. Tripp has been out of the game with a sprained ankle and is just taking up his work, but although Erwin has been playing rousing football for the other guard, Andrews and Boggs are making it a lively competition for the place.

Flanders has made more of a gap between himself and his rivals than any other of the new candidates for a vacant place. His plugging for the stop-back work is bearing fruit, and he is now steady and speedy, and is down the field with the rest of the rush line. Smith, his nearest rival, ultimately crowed Hutchinson to the bench. Hutchinson's play is brilliant, but his cunning playing of the game for the team is the effective.

Yale is like drawing straws to pick Yale's back field from the outlook at present. Lea, who was the star punter of the game ten days ago, was found to have badly wrenched the tendons of his knee, and his injury, combined with his father's opposition to his playing longer, will probably result in his retirement from football. Thus Yale loses her best punter.

Why Are There So Many Poor Cooks in These Later Days?

INNUMERABLE reasons are a man ? There is no more reason to expect a woman to be a cook that there is to expect a man to be a carpenter. This is the day of specialties. If a person can do one thing well it is about all that can be expected.

The day has passed when a woman can do all the housework, have ten or fourteen children and take all the care of them herself.

Those were the days of our grandmothers, before typewriters, sewing machines, rotary cars and phonographs were heard of.

Life was a simple, quiet process. There were no problems bewilding a woman except the problem of cooking and bringing up children.

Now she is expected to do these things and a thousand and one other things besides.

She doesn't specialize on cooking.

She takes it for granted she knows how to cook.

But what a mistake. Most Americans don't even know when good cooking is, much less how to cook.

To become a good cook means quite as much work as to be a good stenographer, or to be a good carpenter.

We are fast becoming a nation of nervous dyspeptics, and it is not so much because we live at such a tremendous rate of speed as because we have such poorly cooked food we can't digest it.

A person, to live and work, must have nourishing food, and food that is badly cooked lacks nourishment. As time goes on and people realize this there will be more and more of a demand for specialists in this line.

One thing we all have to do is to eat.

"We can live without friends,
We can live without books,
But civilized man cannot live without cooks."

It is only in the results that they are interested.

One person tells us that higher education is the arch fiend that is breaking up our homes.

Before women went in for Latin, Greek and mathematics her aim in life was to make good things to eat. She was always thinking of her table and how to provide it with the best viands.

Surely these were halcyon days, but they have gone far, far away.

Now it is literature, history or Greek about which women are thinking, and business has a hand in the making of poor pie.

A woman who has tried work in a factory or business life in any of its various forms finds anything connected with domestic life "too dull for words."

So she flies to the factory or office, and fancies she has progressed a step beyond her domestic sister.

Why sitting in a close, stuffy office, using a typewriter or doing bookkeeping, is considered a higher type of labor than cooking only these office workers know.

One reason may be that it admittedly takes time to learn stenography and bookkeeping, while the general opinion seems to be that being a woman is the only requisite for being a cook.

But what kind of carpentry would we have if every man were expected to be a carpenter merely because he was born a woman to be a cook that there is expect a man to be a carpenter. This is the day of specialties. If a person can do one thing well it is about all that can be expected.

AS TOLD BY THE TEA-LEAVES

TIME-HONORED is the tradition that one's sweetheart is noble of mind or associates tea leaves with the fate of a maiden's heart.

Isn't it natural that a lonely bachelor girl should linger over her tea, and dream of the far-away lover, and wonder what fate has in store for her?

But now fashion has decreed that she may wonder in public as to that fortune and her destiny.

So fashion has adopted as her latest fad the amusement of reading fortunes in tea-cups to relieve the monotony of the usually dull afternoon tea.

Fortune-telling by tea leaves was a favorite pastime with her dainty grandmother, and looked upon quite seriously in those days.

The girl of to-day views nothing too seriously, and she will derive a great amount of sport now that this custom has become the fad.

Anyone can learn the secret of the mystery and with the aid of the cup and saucer especially made for this occasion it does not require more than a little practice and a lively imagination to produce quite an expert in this line.

On the inside of the cup are the signs of the zodiac and various symbols, on which the tea leaves fall and register their fate.

If the tea leaves only know their responsibility! But they do not, or else are indifferent, for they often fall on the cup's ears, which signifies that someone is telling an unpleasant secret.

They might just as well fall on the diamond heart, which is a token of good luck and means that somewhere in the world there is a fond lover whose thoughts have not strayed from the one who is still true to him.

The diamond also foretells wealth and that news will shortly be received of a friend's engagement. Nothing could be more satisfactory than when the tea leaves lie between the heart and the diamond.

The star that was in ascendancy at the hour of your birth has a great deal to do with life's fortunes, and the tea cup tells how to find it all out, what color to wear and what characteristic to cultivate or subdue.

It is not the character of the one who has drunk the tea that is thus portrayed.

But the "stranger" part that usually found in the bottom of the cup toll if before it dries.

Hints on Health and Beauty

By the Professor

DEAR PROFESSOR:

My lips are badly and I would like very much to have you tell me what is best to do for them.

IT is a good thing for everybody who is wise enough to care for her beauty to have a good lip salve on hand for occasional use. It is easy to mix one for yourself, as follows:

Spermaceti, one-quarter ounce; white wax, one-quarter ounce; flour of benzoin, fifteen grains; oil of sweet almonds, one ounce. Melt these together in a jar placed in a pan of boiling water. When melted stir until cool. Color tinted red with alkanet root.

Constant use of a salve makes the lips tender and should be avoided.

DEAR PROFESSOR:

I want to make my hair white in spots artificially. Can you tell me how it is done easily? DAISY R. T.

ONE of the simplest methods for making the hair wavy is to shampoo it with soapy water in which a few grains of carbonate of potash have been dissolved.

While the hair is still moist it must be loosely dressed as desired, and the effect comes as it dries.

Another method is to moisten the hair with strong rosemary water, black tea or aromatic vinegar in which only a few grains of carbonate of potash to a half-pint of the tonic have been added and dissolved. Brush this in and dress the hair

Expert Description of Smartest New Fur Garment of the Season

One of the Smartest Fur Creations of the Season

WITH the coming of the chill Autumn days one begins to think of furs and to long for their soft warmth. Every kind of fur is fashionable this Winter.

The pretty, soft, gray squirrel is still much worn, the golden-brown beaver is one more with us, and last year's fashionable moleskin is still to the fore.

The dark furs are more becoming to the majority of women than the lighter varieties. Sables, Persian lamb and sealskin are all intensely becoming. Every woman hopes to own a sealskin at some period of her existence.

A good one is a wise investment, as it lasts for several seasons and stands much doing over.

The beautiful coat here shown is of sealskin. It is thoroughly up to date, showing the long full skirt so much affected this season.

The woven belt is of brave black silk cord with a group of fringed tassels in front. The shawl shaped collar is of matched chinchilla. The bottom are of dull silver to match the collar.

It is lined throughout in lavender brocaded satin and is altogether as luxurious a garment as the soul of woman could desire.

The sleeves are not extreme in style, which is a wise provision, as fashion in sleeves change so constantly that in fur garments it is better to keep to a plain, simple style.

If women wearing fur coats understood the wisdom of shaking them thoroughly after having been worn for some time their coats would last much longer. Nothing ruins a coat so quickly as allowing it to lie matted and flabby.

Don't Flirt With Married Men; It's Dangerous Business

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am nineteen years of age and have been going with a young married man for about a year. He has been married two years and lives with his wife at his mother's home. When I first met him I disliked him very much, and then he was so good and kind to me and every one knew that I could not help but like him, and he swore to me that he did not love his wife, that he had married her to spite another man and that he never knew what love was until he met me, and said that he would sooner give up his life than give up me, and I, too, would give up anything to keep him, for I love him now and could not live without him.

His wife doesn't seem to care for him as she should. We love each other so much that it is hard for us to think that she should keep us apart, and he said that if I should leave him he would kill himself.

He wife don't know anything about it, and he said he didn't care if she found it out, but I am afraid. What shall I do? Please think well before you answer me. AGNES.

By Beatrice Fairfax

"AGNES" sure to "think well" before answering.

I do not need one moment's reflection before telling her that she is absolutely in the wrong. Not only is she stealing another woman's husband, but she is also ruining her own life.

She says that she cannot live without this man, but that is all nonsense.

She can live without him perfectly well, and she will live to see the day when she will be glad enough to get rid of him herself.

No girl ever drifts unconsciously into a flirtation with a married man.

The moment he shows her more than ordinary courtesy she is aware of the change in his manner.

From that moment she should be on her guard. She should avoid him as much as possible and let him plainly understand that his attentions are unwelcome.

She has no more right to another woman's husband than to another woman's pocketbook.

She would not dream of stealing the latter, and yet she quite calmly walks off with the former.

This habit of receiving attention from married men is becoming altogether too prevalent among young girls.

It is a great mistake, not only from a moral standpoint, but also from a politic one.

The girl who runs about with a married man seriously damages her own matrimonial prospects.

No young man will care to marry a girl who has so little regard for her own name.

For let me assure you, girls, that any amount of unkind criticism follows the girl who strikes up a friendship with a married man.

All sorts of things will be said about her, and she cannot resent them, as she deliberately laid herself open to them.

And what is it all for?

A love affair with a man, who, having been married to one woman, is equally likely to prove untrue to another, Agnes says. "His wife does not seem to care for him as much as she should," and adds, "he says he will kill himself if I leave him."

Agnes knows nothing about the state of the wife's heart. She may still love him, for love may have been killed by the man who intend it so lightly.

Threats to killing himself, he will do nothing of the sort.

It is a cowards threat. He is not capable of a love deep enough to make him contemplate suicide for an instant.

It is bad enough that one woman's life should be rendered miserable by this man without his being allowed to interfere with that of another.

What line you would take this to heart.

Do not allow yourselves to become interested in married men.

No good can come of it. It means nothing but heartache and remorse.

The former is bad enough, and we all have to take our share of it, but the latter we can. If we will, avoid to a certain extent.

Fall in love with unmarried men. They are your legitimate prey. But keep away from the married men. You have no right to them.

Avoid Worry if You Would Be Beautiful

PHYSICAL beauty is scarcely ever adequately appreciated until it is on the wane. In fact, it is an axiom of life that our esteem of personal possessions increases with their diminution.

The old idea that beauty reaches its zenith at sweet seventeen is an exploded one. Beauty is not necessarily conferred in form and complexion like that of a mere insipid waxen doll. Such fairness would soon lose its charm if the possessor were of a discontented and nitrifying nature. Who does not prefer a homely, complacent, smiling face to the mere uniformity of contour? No, the evolution of beauty is endless and even to a greater age is an art, not of the application of emollients as purveyed by so-called beauty specialists, but the art of nature.

The goodly dame has placed within the reach of us all the means whereby we can retain, and even increase, whatever grace we possess. Beauty is due to physical activity, to the vigor of the brain, to the inhalation of the pure, fresh air, to our having acceptance of life which it is our lot to live, and live with discreet zest and studious regard of its many warnings. This is the simple and refined art of beauty:

Art quickens Nature; care will make a face;
Neglected beauty perisheth apace.

Nature is very cynical toward those who deliberately or thoughtlessly neglect her precautions.

Life was made for us to find as much of its pure pleasures as possible, and not as a sordid hunting ground for the miseries and sorrows it contains, and which will present themselves all too quickly without calling for a quest.

It will be seen, therefore, that the philosophy of beauty is simplicity—simplicity and purity of purpose in all things. Plain living and high thinking are excellent foundation stones. Abstemiousness will enable the healthful blood to course equably through our veins and mantle our cheeks with the glow of youth.

High thinking simplifies our outlook on life and enables us to see more clearly our own infirmities and those of others, by which knowledge we are able to escape their deleterious effects. Dispel fretting from your mind, worrying over trivialities and wailing at your lot in life. They contain no benefit and are prejudicial to physical health and beauty.

DON'T GROW OLD

MANY women become middle-aged from the simple reason that they allow middle-aged habits to steal upon them. They allow fate a state of physical indolence just at a time when they should fight against this tendency to give up exercise, says Woman's Life. "The best preventive against growing middle aged," says a charming woman of forty-five, whose youthful face and slim figure give her the appearance of being at least fifteen years younger than her real age, "are cheerfulness, a strict determination not to worry over trifles and a sense of humor that carries one from depression. A cold tub every morning, a walk every day in rain or sunshine, face massages with cold cream at night, ten minutes' physical exercise immediately on rising, friction of the hair to stimulate its growth, will keep the woman free from wrinkles and will preserve the contour of her figure."

TO DO UP MUSLIN DRESSES

TO make colored muslins look like new boil one quart of wheat bran in six quarts of water for half an hour. Strain through cloth and when cool wash the dress in this, using neither soap nor starch. Rinse lightly in clear water, to which a little ox gall (or less been added. If colors are to be set, a tablespoonful of the gall to the usual amount of water; there is no danger of fading. The proportion is enough for a nearly dry, iron. This preparation of bran both cleanses and stiffens the fabric.

How a Lowell Mill Hand Was Made a Life Prisoner for Love

"CONVICT 99"

The Story of an Irish-American Persecuted in an English Prison

SYNOPSIS.

SERVING a life sentence in an English prison at Grimley, Laurence Craig now to suspect his friend, Ralph Vickers, of the murder of Cliff Resteren, of which he had been convicted, Geraldine Lucas, the heiress, began to believe that Vickers, who had bribed Warder Gannaway to kill Craig, was false to his pretty. As of friendship, Craig was wounded in trying to escape. Gannaway sent Vickers a message which made him believe Craig was dead. But the warder remained on Irish pluck and a constitution built up by the bracing air of Massachusetts, where Craig was born.

He has fled by far, and is soon to come to visit even to write to Geraldine Lucas. In the meantime her father tried to persuade her to wed Ralph Vickers, but she seemed him, and refused him in her quiet merchant.

An office boy read Vickers's letter to Gannaway revealing some to him the death of Laurence Craig, for attempting to escape, was sentenced to forty dozen blows and six months in prison.

"HARD work and a hard life will have distorted his features—spoiled all the fine feminine beauty you admire so much."

The illnesses that come of privation will have shrunk his body, and long association with the vilest reprobates will have left its mark. He will be broken down, prematurely old, changed beyond recognition. Will such a man be worth your fidelity, your love? Will you wait on, whose youth should be crowned with love and happiness, not spent in weary waiting.

"You forget that Laurence is an innocent man," she said, mothoning him back from her. "He cannot remain a convict twenty years."

So you still cling to that delusion as to his innocence?" said Vickers. And he laughed a mocking. "Who is to prove him innocent? he cannot do it himself."

"No," returned Geraldine, quietly; "I will do it. I have advanced a step toward it to-day."

A shade of anxiety crossed Vickers's face.

"Advanced a step. How?"

"I have set a solicitor to work in the matter."

Vickers's eyes flashed.

"Neither you nor any man, nor God himself, could prove Craig's innocence," he retorted, "for the sufficient reason that he is guilty. As surely as we stand here now, he is the murderer of Resteven."

Yet, with all his bluster, Vickers ran through Vickers as he dared to utter words which could thrill even such him outwardly. But Geraldine did not realize this. She had moved a few steps nearer, and now stood before him, erect and stately, with burning eyes.

"Go, Mr. Vickers," she said imperiously, adding in an icy tone, "I wish you a good night."

Passionate love and quivering hate rose together in Ralph Vickers's soul.

"I will go," he answered her, smiling defiantly in the belief that the lover for for a few weeks; Laurence cannot need whose sake she spurned him lay nameless me until we return."

and lifeless under the cold earth of the prison graveyard. "But I will come again. A love strong as mine is cannot be driven back. Though you reject me fifty times I will come again. I will pursue you until you yield."

He was gone while yet his last words lingered on the warm, sweet air. She heard the outer doors shut after him. Then she crossed and sank down again into the low chair by the fire.

"I will go away, as father wishes," she said to herself, "to escape all of me from this treacherous man. And it will be only

CHAPTER XXVI.

On the Way to Ignominy

UNDER the kind treatment of the prison doctor, and with the better nourishment that he received in the infirmary, Laurence Craig grew gradually stronger. But this return to strength, while it restored his hope, brought him also daily nearer to the ordeal that he dreaded.

The horrible thought of the lash dwelt constantly in his brain, burning there like a point of fire. At times he asked himself whether it would not be better to arrest his recovery—to refuse his food, to summon back in some desperate way the devouring fever that had so lately left him. But again the thought of Geraldine deterred him. He told himself that it would be cowardly to so evade his punishment.

The old Irish spirit rose in him, bidding him boldly confront his fate. The struggle before him was long and fierce, and—if he would triumph in it he must maintain his strength.

Laurence had great difficulty in securing for his own use the luxuries that the doctor had ordered for him. The infirmary orderlies, who were themselves convicts, took every possible opportunity of stealing his food, and the wardens were even more designedly brutal and unkind than those of any other ward in the whole prison.

They grudged to a sick convict every extra comfort that his illness required, and being unable to impose any tasks upon their charge, they took it out of them by refusing to listen when they called for help that might relieve their sufferings.

Cruel Treatment

The invalid prisoner was thus at the warder's mercy. If unable to move without assistance he might lie moaning for hours in his agony, but no help would come to him unless the doctor or his official assistants happened to be present.

The second man sounds the more worthy of the two men. If the first one cannot keep a steady position you had better not waste your time on him. Perhaps if you did not see the first man so often the other would come forward and declare himself. Do not marry a man you don't love.

Laurence asked him one morning to kindly close a window behind his bed. The latter cast wind was blowing in upon his close-cropped head, giving him severe neuralgic pains.

"I can't close the window," growled the warder; "it's against orders. The doctor says there's not enough ventilation in the ward."

"But the wind is too cold," objected Laurence. "can't you see that the snow is coming in, too?"

"It's nothing to do wi' me. If you're cold, shove your head under the pillow and put another yourself."

An hour or two afterward the doctor came upon his rounds.

A convict in the bed next to Laurence happened to be the expositor of Mayfair, who had already spoken with him on several occasions. He had been installed in the previous day. He called the doctor to his bedside and pointed to the open window behind Laurence's head and said it.

"Did you order that window to be opened, sir?" the old convict boldly asked.

"No, I did not," said the doctor.

"I am glad to hear it," rejoined the expositor. "I should be sorry to see an old pound of nine acting with such brutality."

"A pound of yours!" exclaimed the doctor. "What do you mean?"

"Ah," said the convict, "I see you don't recognize me. It is likely that I shall remain under your care until the day of my death."

"So perhaps it is as well that I should tell you who I am. I was one of the examining physicians who gave you your diploma. Do you remember me now?"

Another Unfortunate

The doctor drew back and pronounced the convict's name—the name of a once famous West End physician.

"Yes," said the convict, "unfortunately I am he. Since my residence in Grimley I have had many times to get entered here. This terrible cold weather has at last done for me, and now that I have succeeded I have no stop. Can you not prescribe any of the economical impositions on me, doctor. Give me the proper drugs and treatment, if you please."

"I am sincerely sorry to find you here," returned the doctor, looking at him in surprise. "I will certainly give you every comfort that the rules allow."

"I am obliged to you, sir," said the prisoner. "And now, what about this man in the next bed, No. 99? I hear he is ordered a flogging. Can you prevent it? That shot wound in his side should surely be a good excuse."

The doctor reflected a moment, glancing through the iron bars at Craig.

"I will see about it," he replied, as he turned away.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

TRY "PLAIN ENGLISH"

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

It is through the deepest love for a young lady whom I have known for two years that I write for your most precious advice. The lady to whom I refer lives quite a distance from my home, and therefore I get little time to make her a call, although we correspond frequently.

I have often written letters to her telling her I know near as I could of my love for her, without saying so out in plain English. For when I receive a letter from her it is so cold that I actually shiver when I read it. I fear that I shall never again have the same love for another as I now hold for her. She is very beautiful, but true a woman's heart is hard to read. I am continually sending her presents and offering her evenings of enjoyment, which she refuses in an odd way. Can you advise me what to do?

P. E.

I WOULD advise you to try the "plain English" method. Tell her right out that you love her and want to marry her. Even if she should refuse you, you would know the worst, and that would be far better than worrying along as you are now, self.

WHICH SHALL IT BE?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty years old, and have been going with two young ladies until lately did not know which one I loved best. One young man has no steady position, but he seems to be very fond of me. The other is of a very quiet disposition, and is more respected in every way. This is the young man I love the best, but I do not know in what way I could find out if he loved me best. Perhaps if I stopped going with the other young man he might think more of me, but the way I feel I would not like to stop going with the other young man if I thought the one I loved did not love me. Now if you could tell me a way to find out which loves me I would be thankful. I have heard that he said he loved me. I think the reason he has not told me is because he is so bashful.

MAE.

THE second man sounds the more worthy of the two men. If the first one cannot keep a steady position you had better not waste your time on him. Perhaps if you did not see the first man so often the other would come forward and declare himself. Do not marry a man you don't love.

A Graceful Gown

Hearst's Boston American Pattern

Nos. 3,023 and 2,987—What a world of pretty ideas Mistress Fashion evolves from that fate head of hers. The accompanying design shows a charming—combination set to silk—which displays rare good style and grace. The art of the French designer reveals itself in the charming fancy yoke which is applied and may be omitted if preferred. Narrow ribbon passing around the yoke can be used to yoke depth in front, broadening the shoulder line and providing fulness for the blouse. The sleeve may be full or three-quarter length. The skirt is one of unusual grace, the back combining the fulness at the top and over the hips. Four graduated all-around tucks simulate flounces and lend grace to the whole. The dress is not difficult to make and adapts itself readily to home construction. The costume will require 12¼ yards of 36-inch material.

Pattern No. 3,023 is in five sizes, 32 to 40 inches bust.

Pattern No. 2,987 is in six sizes, 20 to 30 inches waist.

JACK HARKAWAY'S SON

His Adventures at Sea

By CAPTAIN RICHARD RUDD, Author of "WHO KILLED GERALD BROWN?"

WHEN Pedro, the policeman, whose lying story had brought them into Hunston's ambush, fell with a knife in his heart, Jack and his two friends realized that they had been victims of a plot, and determined to sell their lives as dearly as possible. In the dark tropical forest they made ready to give battle, while the faithful Tony hastened through the streets of Havana, warned Dorothy, the daughter, the girl for whose sake Jack had started to chase the arch-villain around the world.

CHAPTER XII.

A Fight for Life

PEDRO, the policeman, had paid the penalty of his treachery. The sleeping lie was the first of Jack's party. Hunston's outlaws had attacked him.

When Jack and his friends reached the spot where their betrayer lay they found him hacked and bleeding, and stone dead.

The outlaws had evidently discovered that they had killed a friend, for they had drawn away into the darkness.

Not a sound of them was to be heard.

The wind rustled the branches of the trees overhead, and from far away came the calls of strange night birds.

But not a human voice nor a human step served as a guide to the little company of Americans.

Jack gathered his friends closely about him.

"They are somewhere near, holding a parley," he whispered. "They will come with a rush when they do come."

But for a long time his prophecy was not fulfilled.

The moon came out from the thick bank of clouds and lighted the country round about.

It was a weird, deceptive light.

In it objects that were almost at hand seemed a mile away, and a man might be lying within a few feet and be as invisible as if he were hidden in the darkness.

Steel had begun to get nervous.

"For the love of safety, Jack," he whispered, "let us get out of this as soon as we can."

Jack shook his head.

"It would be foolish to retreat now," he answered. "It would only bring about another attack. These fellows are cowards, and they are not likely to do much damage if we show fight."

A Reptile Monster

"We'll show fight all right," said Harvey, gritting his teeth. "I didn't favor coming into this place, but now I'm here it will take more than two Cuban outlaws to finish me."

Jack smiled. He had seen Harvey in action before, and he knew that this prophecy would be fulfilled.

As they waited, crouching under the shelter of a tree, there was a sudden rustling in the grass beside them.

Quick as a flash Jack turned.

He started in the direction from which the sound came, but suddenly recoiled with an exclamation of horror.

"It's a snake as big as an anchor cable," he said. "Quick, help me!"

Harvey picked up a limb of a tree that had fallen near by and started for the place where the reptile was creeping, but Jack stopped him.

"You need to learn something of snakes," he said. "Watch me."

He whipped out his knife and cut a slender withe from a shrub near by, a stick as slender and as wiry as a whip.

Then approaching cautiously the spot where the big serpent's beady eyes could be seen glistening in the moonlight, he brought it down smartly several times over the monster's back.

The snake at the first blow uttered a horrible hiss, but it was his swan song.

The next blow descended, and he lay limp and lifeless in the grass.

Jack turned to Harvey.

"Now you are killing snakes," he said, "that is a good thing to remember. You can kill them all day with a club, and you won't hurt them much, but a slender whip curls around their bodies and breaks their spines. Then it is all day with Mister Snake."

An Attack

But hardly was one danger averted than another came following on.

While Jack and the others were busy with the snake they had not noticed that the two signal lights were again dancing in the trees.

The outlaws were drawing in.

They had apparently discovered that the party to attack was small and their courage had sprung up afresh.

Jack had hardly risen from his task of snake extermination when he heard a shout almost in his ears, and the next minute he beheld the blade of a machete flashing in the moonlight.

Without waiting to think he pulled his pistol and fired a few inches above the blade.

There was a groan, and the wicked knife, with its wielder, went crashing to the ground.

But behind it other knives were gleaming.

The wood seemed alive with them.

The shouts of the outlaws rose above the sound of the wind.

Jack knew enough Spanish to understand that they were calling to each other to come on that now was the time to strike.

He looked at Harvey and Steel, and found them ready for business.

"Now," he said, "is the time. Let them have it."

All three drew their pistols, and fired a volley into the woods before them.

There was a chorus of howls of pain and anger.

Then came the attack.

A dozen men dashed out of the underbrush and came leaping toward them, yelling and waving their knives.

"Wait," said Jack, worryingly. "Don't fire till you can see their bodies, and then aim low."

The bandits, encouraged by the seeming inaction of their victims, charged ahead, yelling with ferocious joy.

A Devilish Plan

But hardly had they approached within striking distance when the pistols once more spoke, and the foremost of them, leaping high in the air, came tumbling to the ground.

Terror-stricken at the deadly aim of the Americans the rest turned and fled.

"Quick!" said Jack. "Now is our time. Up and after them, and if this is the work of this fellow Hunston, we shall soon settle accounts with him for all time."

The men ran recklessly through the woods, and our friends followed, shudder ing as they stumbled over dead bodies on the way.

One of the outlaws, who had been brought down with a broken leg, seized Jack's foot as he ran, and tripped him.

Jack went sprawling into the underbrush, but quickly picked himself up again and followed on after his friends, without pausing any vengeance on the man who had so nearly destroyed him.

The chase was a short and long one.

The natives were familiar with the woods, and the unhurried made their way readily in and out of the trees, keeping up a tremendous pace.

The injured soon spent of breath, began to fall, and called loudly for help, but their companions paid no heed to them.

The progress of Jack and his two companions was slower, but no effort that they would soon reach the end of the journey, and be able to surround the men in their cabin.

But little suspected that directly in his path was a deep pit, set with sharp stakes, and that just beyond it Hankton was waiting in the eager hope that he and the others would fall into it, and be impaled on the murderous spikes.

Breathlessly listening to the noise in the forest Hunston waited.

Soon the first native emerged from the thicket and ran around the pit. The Americans would follow in a minute.

TO BE CONTINUED.

ACCEPTS LOWELL CALL.

ATTLEBORO, Oct. 16.—Rev. Ulysses L. Bones, formerly of this place and now of Portland, Ore., has accepted a call to a Lowell church, according to word received here. He was chaplain of the Fifth Massachusetts Regiment in the Spanish War.

DR. WITHROW RESENTS UNITARIANS' EXCLUSION

Park Street Church Pastor Says He Wishes No Privilege Which They May Not Share.

Rev. Dr. John L. Withrow of the Park Street Congregational Church, preaching from the text, "Thou shall become as one flock," declared that the action of the National Federation of Churches in barring the Unitarians from the coming reunion was revolting to him.

Dr. Withrow declared that he was orthodox, and old school in his Christian doctrine, but that he could not uphold the Church Federation in its attitude to such men as Dr. Hale or Ex-Governor Long and to Unitarianism. He said in part:

"Christian circles heretofore have recently suffered a jar which might become a jolt were it not that the spirit of Christ, the great head of the church, has more sensitive control than before time.

"What I refer to is the Church Federation ruse that recently rose in New York and spread as a petty prairie fire through out newspaperdom.

"Two very distinguished Unitarians, Rev. Dr. E. E. Hale and ex-Governor John D. Long, have been elected to represent their denomination, but are informed they cannot have a share or a seat in the coming convention.

"For long I have borne the reputation of being both Orthodox and old school in my Christian doctrines. The essential beliefs in which I was born and bred have been and are very dear to me.

"But I find myself to stand for a moment in the way of such men as Dr. Hale and Governor Long being offered every privilege I would use and enjoy myself, is to me revolting.

"In theological definitions they would not agree with me nor I with them, but to both my heart and hand would go out as quickly as if there were not a question of difference between our speech as child dren of God and servants of Jesus Christ. The fuse would be laid to quite as quickly as possible."

DRAW PEOPLE TO CHURCH BY AMUSING THEM

"I would preach a yellow sermon, a blue, green, pink, purple or any other color sermon except black to win recruits to Christ's army," declared the Rev. Herbert Johnson in his sermon at the Warren Ave nue Church.

The fuse in allusion to a Boston clergyman who recently resigned, after making the statement that he would not stay in a pulpit where he had to preach yellow sermons.

"Do you know, my friends," he continued, "it is a lovely house, this desire for amusement, and perhaps justifiably so, to such as strive as we do to weep. The whole human family is looking for amusement. Even ex-Mayor Cleveland patiently angling for bass; look at the President, I can't help feeling that dear Roosevelt, after dodging a bullet-proof coat, would be capable of peace, he is off to the Rockies and pulls the trail of some grizzly for his amusement.

"In angling for a series of professional entertainments in the auditorium of this church I believe I am in reality following out the teachings of Paul, the Apostle, for you know Paul in order to win souls was successively a tiller of streets, a Jew, a Gentile, even a blasphemer. So in starting this series of entertainments, which, by the way, can be discontinued if they are not successful, I am trying to help the discouraged and down hearted people of this neighborhood. I feel to draw them to my church, to make them love this church, even as you and I love it. Then to draw them to the services, and finally to Christ himself."

THINKS IT DUTY OF CHRISTIANS TO TAKE PART IN POLITICS

"Ought Christian disciples to be dragged at the heels of prevailing political methods?" was the subject of Rev. Dr. Reuen Thomas's sermon in the Harvard Congregational Church, Brookline. He said in part:

"The machine politician makes the candidate for office the chief member but to vote; yet the most respected church member seldom goes to a caucus and knows next to nothing of a candidate."

Rev. Dr. Thomas evidently believes that politics should be, at times, discussed from the pulpit, as is evidenced by some of the following remarks:

Some say that the church should confine itself simply to molding personal character. Are not the political professions of a man closely related to his moral character?

You cannot make a good citizen out of a bad man.

The question has been put to me, 'Ought not Christians to be politically organized?' Nothing is needed so much to-day as strong, incorruptible men, and we never will get them until Christians go into politics.

Political corruption is hardly known in England to-day. It is an honor there for a man to be an alderman or councilman.

If churches were organized they could smash the rings every time.

It is a good thing sometimes for a party to go into the cold and realize that it has become corrupt.

REV. DR. E. E. HALE PREACHES GOSPEL OF CHEERFULNESS

That Boston is a cosmopolitan city was emphasized at the Parker Memorial when Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale preached a sermon from the text, "There were dwelling in Jerusalem men from every nation under heaven."

Dr. Hale preached the gospel of cheerfulness and said there were duties to be performed by every citizen of the city. There is the duty of hospitality, of charity, of education and of worship.

Dr. Hale said that at this time of the year one person in four whom you meet on the streets is a stranger in the city and one of the many here for work. He pointed out that Boston is becoming a great university city and the young men and women who come here appreciate a welcome.

"Don't let a day go by," said he, "without cheering up some one who is sick, in this great multitude, and if you can cast out some devil that is making a household wretched, do so. We should bear each other's burdens."

THE DELINEATOR for November Out To-day

¶ The Keynote of the new and greater Delineator for November is Novelty.

¶ In its Fashions the new order of things is evidenced on every page; in its illustrations of the present and coming Styles, Novelty of treatment lends much to the temptations of the modes themselves. 64 pages of the New Things from Paris, from New York, from wherever can be gathered the season's newest and best creations.

¶ Speaking in pages may not mean much to you. A better way to realize the bigness of the November Delineator is to know that it contains more pages devoted to fashions and dress topics than any two other magazines.

¶ Helen Berkeley-Loyd and M. Edouard La Fontaine, writing exclusively for this magazine, contribute papers this month that every woman in the land will wish to read—the real news of woman's dress; the final word of authority on what is to be during the coming months, which is awaited with eagerness each season by every woman who cares for her appearance.

¶ Then the color printing—a feature that is practically exclusive with The Delineator—for while one or two other publications print a few pages with an added color, this number contains 21 pages in color in addition to the regular full-color plates of fashions.

¶ The Delineator has always given the most in quality and in quantity for its subscription price—it is now giving more—much more—than ever before.

¶ Practically everything in this number is new—excepting its good old name. Besides the Fashions and the Household Departments, which have made The Delineator famous; besides its Children's Magazine, which is beyond comparison; besides its many special articles of helpfulness and interest, one great feature deserves the attention of every thinking woman and man:

¶ It is nearly two years now since The Delineator began its investigation of the Pure Food Question—the most thorough searching for facts, the most careful analysis of products ever conducted. Supplementing the work of the Government's experts, The Delineator has gone much further by establishing its own board of examiners and specialists who are investigating the different value of food products and beverages, their chemical analysis and correct or fictitious labeling.

¶ The results obtained by this department or laboratory enable the housekeeper to quickly and accurately decide for herself what is safe and wholesome food for daily home consumption.

¶ Readers of The Delineator have been regularly supplied with timely and most interesting articles on the subject. Among these is the series now running in each issue, entitled "Safe Foods and How to Get Them," written by that well-known authority, Mary Hinman Abel. In the November number the author treats of "Official Milk Inspection." The article is well illustrated by pictures and diagrams. If you want to know how a billion gallons of milk are treated annually in this country, Mrs. Abel's article will inform you.

¶ These specially prepared articles are to be a regular feature of The Delineator, and will contain, in part, some of the results of the investigations now carried on by the business department.

¶ That The Delineator has become an authority on the Food Question, all the world knows. No better evidence of this could be found than in the fact that it is frequently and favorably quoted. This, then, is another evidence that no one needed—of the great value of The Delineator to the American housekeeper, not only in the protection of her health, but to her material comfort as well.

Mr. John A. M'Call's Indictment of Himself

Has John A. McCall even a rudimentary moral sense?

The question is made pertinent by the testimony he has been giving before the Armstrong Committee.

He fails to see anything improper in taking the money of the policy-holders to aid the fortunes of a political party which he favored.

One hundred and fifty thousand dollars went that way. But no note of the expenditure appears on the books of the company. Mr. McCall says he sees nothing wrong in that.

He thinks that the late treasurer of the company covered the matter by deducting the various political payments from the profits of certain deals and entering the latter as $50,000, or thereabouts, less than they actually were.

This system doesn't seem to awaken any indignation on the part of Mr. McCall. To him it appears all right to doubly falsify the books of his company by first omitting any entry of heavy expenditures, and afterward entering false figures as to profits.

If an official could divert $150,000 to the Republican National Committee without recording it in any way, who can tell how much officials may have diverted into their own pockets?

It would seem, too, that a man of a nice sense of honor, a man safely to be intrusted with the most sacred savings which our people strive to collect, would hardly take for himself, his son, his son-in-law and his brother-in-law $137,000 annually in the guise of salaries.

How much more the McCall family, big and little, may have made out of their private snap in the New York Life can only be guessed.

That there were other profits seems to be fairly indicated by the fact that McCall borrowed $75,000 of the Metropolitan Life "on call" at 1½ per cent., keeping the money two years; and gave a quid pro quo by lending President Hegeman of the Metropolitan $50,000 of New York Life funds at a similar rate.

And to-day the president shows no sign of moral compunctions.

We hold that in no business calling should there be a higher order of integrity, a nicer sense of personal and business honor than in the business of life insurance.

But Mr. McCall has admitted garbling and falsifying the books of the company, maintaining a corruption fund to influence legislation, taking the policy-holders' money for political purposes, enriching himself and his immediate family with extravagant salaries, and using the funds of the society for personal profit.

He ought to be speedily kicked out—and the kick should land him before a Grand Jury.

Lessons in Municipal Ownership

Give the Schools to Rockefeller and the Postoffice to Morgan.

By Prof. Frank Parsons.

A MAN in Philadelphia of no particular note and another one in Maine want to transfer the postoffice to private ownership, and an English writer thinks that neither parks, baths, fire service nor schools should be public.

That sounds like the Middle Ages, but those men are consistent adherents of the private ownership principle.

It is not surprising that a resident of Philadelphia should have acquired a poor opinion of public enterprise, for what they call public ownership in Philadelphia was a polite name for private ownership by grafters who owned till recently the councils and the City Hall and there was in it.

But aside from this there is, in the views referred to, a charming harmony with the general philosophy of private ownership of public utilities.

Why not give the postoffice and the schools to a Morgan syndicate or a Rockefeller trust? And the army and courts, legislatures and senates?

They have a large hand in the schools and the Senate as it is. Why not give them the whole business? Private ownership is so much more efficient, you know, than public ownership, and so much less corrupt and more public spirited.

It would be a good deal to ask of these great financiers to take such large additional burdens upon themselves, but probably they would be willing to do it for the sake of posterity and the development of the country.

They have already shown a willingness to take upon themselves a very large share of public business and public functions, in the operation of railroads, street railways, gas plants, etc., the management of legislative bodies, including the United States Senate, and even the schools and colleges have not escaped their all-pervading solicitude for the public welfare.

If Wall street syndicates and Standard Oil corporations can run our street railways and gas plants so much better than the public, why can't they run the postal service and courts, water works and fire departments better, also?

Let's be consistent. If private ownership is better than public let's turn over the water works, schools, postoffice, etc., even if we should have to pay four cents postage instead of two, and high water rates and a good stiff tuition fee for every child, in consideration of the superior management under private enterprise.

But if you think that the water works and postal service are better in public hands than in private, then stand for public ownership of the street railways and telegraphs unless you can draw a reasonable distinction between these services which are all admitted to be clearly public in their nature.

If you think that a business owned by a few is apt to be run in the interest of the few, while a business owned by all is likely to be run in the interest of all—or to put it in one comparative phrase, if you think a business owned by the people is MORE apt to be managed in the interest of the people than a business owned by a Morgan syndicate, then do what you can to put the street railways, lighting plants and other services of vital moment to the public under the management of public boards and managers.

And You've Got to Show Him

Should a Girl Marry a Man to Reform Him?

By Caroline

A SHORT while ago a girl came to me for advice, saying that she was deeply in love with a man and he with her. She wanted to know if she should marry him.

He was a great lover of liquor and often drank to excess.

She felt and he said that he hadn't strength to resist the temptation, but he added that with her to strengthen him he could resist any temptation.

Without her he couldn't even control this appetite for drink. Indeed he threatened, if she threw him over, he would go straight to the dogs.

That was his threat; that was the way he talked to the woman he loved.

Could anything have been more selfish?

Still that girl loved him and was even thinking of sacrificing her life to him. What a sacrifice it would have been.

Has a man who admits that he hasn't the strength to turn over a new leaf before marriage turned it over as soon as he had spoken the few words of the marriage service?

There is no doubt that many men have been made better able to resist temptation by the consciousness of the fact that a good woman loved them.

There are a thousand ways a woman can help a man if he is weak and faltering, but it isn't necessary to marry him.

Most people marry for happiness, and the marriage that is to lead to happiness must be founded on respect.

Can a woman respect a man who she feels is weaker than herself? Doesn't she naturally look down upon one who she sees is powerless to stand alone?

She may feel sorry for him and be only too glad to help him.

But she should never marry a man simply because she feels sorry for him; that kind of sorrow soon grows into contempt after the marriage contract is signed.

In marriage there must be mutual respect, and a woman can't respect a man if she looks down upon him.

There is no harm, and often much good comes from women trying to strengthen and uplift the men they know. But when it comes to marriage, leave reform work out, and marry a man whom you can swear with your whole heart, mind and soul to love, honor and obey.

We Are All Born With Will Power, and We Can All Develop It by Properly Exercising It

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1905, by American-Journal-Examiner.

SOME time ago she following statement was made in this column:

The Great Source of Power and Inspiration never bestows talent or ability of any kind upon a human being without bestowing the will power and the qualities which produce success. Talent is given that it may be used to bless humanity, and the strength to so use it is also given.

Many objections to this assertion have been sent me. Among them is the following from a recent editorial on this page:

There is any amount of random ability in the world, any amount of imagination, intelligence—the number of good ideas is unlimited.

But the thing that we lack as a race is will power—which means the force to concentrate the mind upon one thing and keep at it.

To every human being born into life will is given, just as certainly as lungs are filled with innumerable cells.

Not one person in fifty develops to the full extent all the lung cells. Thousands of people die of consumption who might live to a robust old age had they used the lungs given them.

Many of those who die of this disease were born with defective lungs, but had they begun as small children to take breathing exercises, and had they followed a persistent course of lung development, they would have overcome all weaknesses of those organs as simply as the athlete overcomes round shoulders or obesity.

Thousands of people are born with weak wills, but the will is there, and can be developed if the possessor chooses to take the trouble.

If, as the editorial above says, our race lacks will power, it behooves all parents and all teachers to impress upon the mind of the growing generation that will power can be cultivated. This race does not lack will. It lacks development.

Concentration and persistency are the first mental exercises in the cultivation of Will Power.

Under all the "Random Ability" in the world, under all the "Imagination" and "Intelligence," lies this undeveloped will.

It is there just as certainly as the lung structure is under the chest; it is as positive a possession as any physical organ in the body.

However dwarfed and diseased, it is still there and can be developed.

The physical man is only one-third of a human entity. There is the mental man and the spiritual man besides, and the three make the immortal creature whose life here is only as a day to a year in the great period of existence.

We cannot see the mechanism of thought; we cannot see the mechanism of will, but the mind and the will are there.

By merely persisting in the deep, long inhalations and exhalations of the breath, weak lungs can be made strong.

By persistently using the mind and spirit the weak will can be made strong.

A recognition of the Unseen Powers all about this little earth, and an earnest appeal to them to co-operate with us in our efforts to develop will, aids materially our purpose.

The materialist can accomplish it in time alone, but the spiritual-minded man has as much advantage of him as electricity has over the stage coach.

Pray much, assert your will. You will be what you will to be.

Men may live fools, but fools they cannot die.
EDWARD YOUNG.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP LEAGUE

Ward ..... City .....

I, the undersigned, enroll myself a member of the Municipal Ownership League of the city in which I reside. I pledge myself to use every honorable effort to bring about the municipal ownership of public utilities. I believe that city lighting plants to supply the needs of cities and of the citizens as well is one object to be attained.

The attempt now being made to elect a Legislature which will pass measures permitting the establishment of an electric railway monopoly in Massachusetts and granting exclusive franchises to a favored syndicate shows the necessity of a prompt and concerted movement for public ownership by all citizens, irrespective of party.
